LOWDEN'S BOOM RUNNING ON HIGH SEEMS A WINNER

Seen as Best Offset to La Follette.

Frank O. Lowden was in Chicago yesterday on route home from Richmond, Va., where he attended a cattle breeders' convention. He went on from here to his Illinois farm in Ogle county. He was noncommittal on the vice presidency.

"I wish to give the matter further consideration," he said, "and then I may make a statement."

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Cleveland, O., June 6.—[Special.]—With the La Follette Independent candidacy hanging like an ominous cloud over the councils of the Republican party, G. O. P. leaders assembling for the meeting of the national convention next week are intent upon selecting a candidate for vice president whose social mission it would be to... discredited farmers of the northwest in line for the Coolidge ticket.

Nearly all of the national committee-men who have arrived on the scene maintain that former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois is preeminently qualified for this role as well as admirably equipped for the vice presidency, and are saying tonight that if the White House continues to keep hands off nothing can stop the naming of Lowden as the vice-presidential pick.

Some close friends of President Coolidge here, however, are known to have expressed doubts today that Mr. Lowden will be the nominee for second place on the ticket.

Attention was centered upon La Follette today with receipt of intelligence from Washington that the Wisconsin senator intends to announce his independent candidacy for President tomorrow.

Senator Johnson [Cal.] already has withdrawn, and the handful of delegates elected for him will vote for Coolidge.

Will Submit Platform. At only one other stage of the proceedings will La Follette take a hand. This will be in connection with the adoption of the party platform. The Wisconsin delegation will propose the La Follette platform as so often before with exactly the same result.

The Wisconsin member of the resolutions committee will submit a minority report which the convention will attempt to adopt. The resolutions committee will be through. It will be done with the Republican party organization, but still calling himself a Republican, will bid for the support of independent Republicans and Democrats and radicals of all shades for election to the presidency.

Forced on La Follette. The plan to launch the La Follette candidacy immediately after the Republican convention is said to have been forced upon the senator by the attention of the St. Paul convention of communists to nominate him for President despite his recent repudiation of their meetings to be held on June 17 and the withdrawal from the gathering of various organizations influenced by the denunciation of the propagandists of agrarian socialism.

Instead of letting the communists jump on him, La Follette pur-sued to get the jump on them. Instead of accepting their nomination, he would appear by announcing after the St. Paul meeting, La Follette will announce first and then will make their indifference, for which, of course, he will not be responsible.

The further expectation is that the convention of railroad brotherhood allied organizations here on June 4 will nominate La Follette for president and Warren S. Stone, chief of the railway engineers, for vice president.

Why They Fear Him. Not a few Republican leaders here are full of misgivings regarding the La Follette candidacy. They fear he will prove a powerful candidate in some of the old time banner Republican states in the corn and wheat belts and that the result will be either the election of the Democratic candidate or the precipitation of the choice of president into congress.

It is turned out that the La Follette campaign is one of the important factors in the development of the Lowden boom for vice president to vast proportions in the last two or three days. Lowden is popular with the farmers.

REICHSTAG O. K. PUT ON DAWES PLAN, 247-183

Yankees Praised as Honest Arbiters.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

(Copyright, 1924, By The Chicago Tribune.)

BERLIN, June 6.—The Reichstag and its program, providing for full acceptance of the Dawes reparations report, was approved by the reichstag today by a vote of 247 to 183.

Foreign Minister Stresemann won the victory by a two hour fighting speech. He outlined the program and the German interpretation of the Dawes report. With stinging sarcasm he silenced bitter, howling opponents in the ranks of the super-nationalists or communists.

"The Dawes report is a modern, economic Bible, in the eyes of public opinion throughout the world," he declared. "The American expert played an important part in formulating the Dawes report. All the international experts who worked on the report sought for a practical solution."

Calls Americans Honest Arbiters.

Turning to the Nationalists, who interrupted him, he declared: "You have not read the Dawes report."

"It was fatal to the whole of Europe for years that after the war America coined the words 'hands off' because the Americans are honest arbiters, far away from the sea they see the matter in its proper light."

"The point is in the spirit in which the Dawes suggestions will be carried out and interpreted. We want to interpret them fairly and expect others to do so, too."

"The problem closest to the hearts of the Germans is the fate of political prisoners in the occupied zones and the thousands who were deported from their homes in the occupied zones. We have been negotiating with the allied governments in these matters and hope for a settlement."

See Ruhr Cleared of Troops.

"The question of military evacuation of the Ruhr by the French troops is mainly a question of prestige. The experts' report mentions the military evacuation, but provides that the organizations which are to control the Ruhr can only be mentioned in a separate report."

An agreement must be reached between Germany and France about a full possible evacuation. The occupation reduces Germany's paying capacity even in the eyes of the Dawes report, and we are sure an understanding can be reached. One reason we believe this is the fact that M. Herriot's position will be strong in France when he becomes premier. We cannot guarantee a sensible solution of the policy in the Ruhr unless we can control the administration there."

Urges Quick Action.

"I believe the program in the near future should include: Point one, acceptance of the German laws being prepared for the fulfillment of the Dawes report by July 1. This would be followed by point two within two weeks; say July 14, the abolition of the customs regulations established around the Ruhr occupied zone. We cannot think of paying cash unless we know these preparatory conditions are fulfilled. I am convinced that when the French government accepts the Dawes report it will also prepare for the acceptance of its consequences."

After a vote of confidence was given the government the reichstag adjourned until June 24 to give the government time to prepare the laws necessary to fulfill the suggestions made in the Dawes report.

BURGERS LOOT
TWO GOLD COAST
HOMES; GET GEMS

Jewelry valued at more than $10,000 was taken from the home of Herbert W. Wolf, 1217 Ritchie court, last night while Mrs. Wolf and her daughter were dining with friends at the Ambassador hotel. Mr. Wolf, who is vice president of the American Car and Foundry company, was out of town.

Police hurried to the home when Margaret Murphy, the Wolf maid, telephoned that a window had been opened. They found the place ransacked of the jewelry and $100 in cash. The maid was gone.

Two domestic in the home of Ralph Otis, a real estate man who is now in California with his wife, notified the police that burglars had entered the home at 1323 Astor street. The entrance to the robbery is not known.

FARMING EXPERT GORED TO DEATH BY PRIZE BULL

John Luttinger, 70 years old, manager of the International Harvester Company's experimental farm three miles south of Hinsdale, Ill., was crushed to death by a Holstein bull Thursday morning. The animal attacked Mr. Luttinger when the latter attempted to drive it back from a water tank to a small pen where it was being kept for safety.

When the farm gardener reached Mr. Luttinger, the bull, weighing around 1,000 pounds, was down on his knees butting and hooking with all his might and grinding his victim's body on the gravel surfaced barnyard. With pitch forks and iron bars workers and mechanics on the farm had to fight for several minutes before the mad animal would release his victim.

Mr. Luttinger was still conscious when he was picked up and carried to the house, where he died within ten or fifteen minutes. Following an inquest, Du Page county officials ordered the bull killed yesterday. He is a pure bred, owned by H. B. Udry, vice-president of the harvester company, and had been loaned to the experimental farm for the season.

For more than forty-three years Mr. Luttinger has been connected with the farm implement business. His old friends at the company's head office here in Chicago say that he has been in almost every country in the world where agricultural implements are used. He leaves a wife and one son.

Funeral services will be held at the farm Monday and the body will be taken to Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. Luttinger's old home, for burial.

CLEVELAND CAR
STRIKE VOTED ON
CONVENTION EVE

Cleveland, O., June 6.—Motorists and conductors of the Cleveland Railway company voted almost unanimously tonight to strike Tuesday midnight unless a 12 cents an hour wage increase, awarded several days ago by an arbitration board, is granted. The strike becomes effective on the opening night of the Republican national convention.

Vote to strike followed refusal of the company to accept the award because of continuance of James W. Holcomb, former traffic commissioner, as fifth and "neutral" member of the arbitration board. The company objected to Holcomb because it charged that he had union support in his candidacy for a political office.

TINNEY IN KIMONO A FIGHTIN' FOOL!

Imogene Tells New Role as Punching Bag.

New York, June 6.—[Special.]—The fourth episode in the drama, "Treat 'Em Rough," in which Frank Tinney, the comedian, is starring with Imogene Wilson, the well known chorus girl, as sparring partner, was enacted today in West Side police court before the largest audience that ever assembled in and about that grimy structure.

Tinney seemed to be trying to forget. He had completely lost his "comic complex." Before entering the court room he drank a quart of milk in the corridor. The milk was cold.

The complainant, who has begun a civil action against the actor for $190,000 damages, testified in a low, clear voice.

Pedigree of a Cynic.

Miss Wilson said she was 21 years old, an actress, that she was born in Louisville, Ky., and had been in New York four years. She had known the defendant two years, she said. She said she reached her apartments in the early evening on May 27 and found Tinney there. He said, "Hello, Babe," she said "Hello, Frank." Tinney, she said, went into another room and was there when at 9:30 a reporter called.

"Mr. Tinney walked out of the room in my blue kimono and with the defendant's arm around her waist."

"He said 'I don't believe you want to repeat it. The reporter was named Hollinger. 'Who is that?' asked Tinney. 'A reporter,' I explained. Tinney said, 'I don't believe you.'"

"Don't Kick That Way."

"When the reporter went out he kicked me on the right instep. He was wearing walking shoes. I said, 'Don't kick me that way!' He went into the kitchen. When I went in he hit me in the ear with his fist. I fell to the floor."

"He dragged me into the sitting room, sat on me, and beat me between the shoulders until I had a hemorrhage of the nose and mouth. He was calling me terrible names. He pulled my hair and then threw me on a chair. He threw an ash receiver at me. I threw up my arm and got it on the arm."

"After it was all over, she said, Tinney ordered her to go out and get cigarettes. She said she pulled off her dress and put on Tinney's clothes. She explained this by saying that she wanted to keep him in the apartment until she could get a policeman or "summons" etc."

LOEB—LEOPOLD DENY ANY 'ORGY' OF CASH IN TRIAL

Nathan F. Leopold Sr. and Albert H. Loeb, fathers of the two boys accused of the murder of Robert Franks, yesterday broke their silence. Through Clarence Darrow, their attorney, they issued the following statement:

"In view of the many statements that large sums of money will be used in the defense of Nathan F. Leopold Jr. and Richard A. Loeb, the families of the accused boys desire to say that they have lived in Chicago for more than fifty years, and the public can judge whether they have conducted themselves in their relations with this community as truthful, decent, upright, law abiding citizens, conscious of their duties and responsibilities to the community in which they live."

"They have not the slightest indication nor intention to use their means to stage an unsightly legal battle with an elaborate array of counsel and an army of high priced assistants in an attempt to defeat justice. Only such defense as that to which every human being is entitled will be provided for their sons."

"Assuming that the facts in this case are substantially as published, then the only proceeding they favor is a simple, solemn investigation under the law, touching the mental responsibility of their accused sons."

"They emphatically state, that no counsel for the accused boys will be retained, other than those lawyers now representing them, with the possible, but not probable, retention of one additional local lawyer. There will be no large sums of money spent, either for legal or medical talent."

"The fees to be paid to medical experts will be only such fees as are ordinary and usual for similar testimony."

"The lawyers representing the accused boys have agreed that the amount of their fees shall be determined by a committee composed of the officers of the Chicago Bar association."

"If the accused boys are found by a jury to be not mentally responsible, their families, in accordance with their conscious duty towards the community, agree that the public must be fully protected from any future menace by these boys."

"In no event will the families of the accused boys use money in any attempt to defeat justice."

MRS. C. S. MOTT
FALLS TO DEATH
FROM BEDROOM

Flint, Mich., June 6.—Mrs. Ethel Mott, wife of Charles S. Mott, vice president of the General Motors corporation, was almost instantly killed this morning when she fell from the window of her bedroom on the second floor of their home here.

Mrs. Mott was found by the caretaker of the estate lying unconscious beneath the window. She died a half hour later. No one saw the accident.

Internal injuries received in the fall caused her death, according to physicians.

Mrs. Mott, who was 43 years old, was deeply interested in charitable and social welfare work. She was a member of the board of directors of the Flint Young Women's Christian association. She was married in New York in 1910 and is survived by two daughters and a son.

MENTAL INQUIRY FOR SLAYERS TO BE SOUGHT

Crowe Will Demand Both Be Hanged.

(Pictures on back page)

If Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb escape capital punishment in their trial for the murder of Robert Franks, they will immediately be tried again.

This determination on the part of State's Attorney Crowe came yesterday upon reflection that the slayers of young Franks stand indicted of two crimes, both punishable by death.

One charge is murder. The other is kidnapping for ransom. Thus plans are going forward for the formation of two distinct and complete prosecutions.

Statement Forecasts Sanity Hearing.

Nathan F. Leopold Sr. and Albert H. Loeb issued their first public statement yesterday. It appears in an adjoining column. In it there is a distinct forecast that a plea will be made for the application of a mental test to their sons, Nathan Leopold Jr. and Richard Loeb.

Thus, according to reports in the criminal court building, there loomed the possibility of a mental test and of an underground action on the part of a jury. Great care, therefore, is being exercised in preparing the prosecution.

"The indictments returned today are separate and distinct cases, one charging the murder of Robert Franks, the other kidnapping him for ransom," said a state's attorney's clerk.

"Never Can Tell."

"It's an old saying among lawyers 'you never can tell what a jury will do.' Suppose there was an acquittal, or even a penitentiary sentence, or a verdict of insanity. Then, if the state's attorney so wills, Leopold and Loeb may be tried on the kidnapping charge which also carries the extreme penalty on conviction."

The state was

LONDON TERROR GANGS LIKENED TO TWO SLAYERS

Mohocks of 18th Century Preyed on Citizens.

Nathan F. Leopold Jr. and Richard A. Loeb, in their cells in the county jail, are modern examples of the axioms that history repeats itself.

In the anti-social activities of these confessed slayers of Robert Franks, the student of the past who likes to draw contemporary parallels finds the same motive that in the early part of the eighteenth century terrorized the citizens of London with bands of lawless young aristocrats.

Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb are aristocrats, self-constituted, because of their fathers' wealth and super-normal intellects. Their reaction, says the deliver into history, is the same as that of Queen Anne—the assumption of a license superseding all the laws set down by society.

The Mohock Club. Most famous of the bands which prowled the streets at this time when drinking and gaming were a gentleman's prerogatives were the Mohocks, their name borrowed from the tribe of American Indians but corrupted by British usage.

There were other groups of young men, who called themselves clubs. Among them, to borrow from the list set down by Victor Hugo in "L'Homme Qui Rit," were the Sho-Romps club, given to insulting women; the Merry Dancers, devoted to taking part in lascivious dances; the Hell-fire club, devoted to the promotion of impiety; the Butting club, whose sport lay in butting the passerby with their heads; and the Fun club, whose chief object in life was the "fun," that came from burning houses, breaking windows, and turning up water pipes.

Make Streets Unsafe. But the Mohocks were the most notorious of all. Taking form in 1712, they quickly made the streets unsafe for decent citizens.

"Did I tell you about a race of rakes called the Mohocks that play the devil about this town every night, till people's noses, but them, etc.," wrote Swift in his "Journal to Stella" in that year.

And again in Lecky's "History of the Eighteenth Century." "One of their favorite outrages, called 'tipping the lion,' was to squeeze the nose of their victim flat upon his face and to bore out his eyes with their fingers. A bishop's son was said to be one of the gang, and a baronet was among those who were arrested."

"To do evil for evil's sake, was the program," Hugo goes on to say. "The Mohock club had one great object—to injure. To fulfill this duty, all means were held good. In becoming a Mohock, the members took an oath to be hurtful."

Tending to Sadism. It is with these ancient atrocities in mind, and in view of the opinions of alienists who can find in Leopold and Loeb a leaning toward sadism, that perversion, which gives pleasure through inflicting some one else, that the historian draws his parallel.

Privileged in their own estimation to disregard the law and the rights of others, freed of the necessity of working, anxious for excitement and sensation, thrown into a period of post-war license, these boys, say the students of history, are the Mohocks of today.

"Such were, near the beginning of the eighteenth century, the pastimes of the rich idlers in London," says Hugo, of these English rakes.

"Such are, in the year 1924, the pastimes of some of the rich idlers in American cities," says the historian, pointing to the kidnapping and murder of Robert Franks, and draws his simile.

Charlevoix Can't Believe Dick Loeb's a Murderer

BY MAUREEN M'KERNAN.

Charlevoix, Mich., June 6.—(Special.)—This, the town where Albert Loeb and his family for several years have spent their summers, likes the Loeb's. Half of the natives can't believe that Dick killed a boy in Chicago. The all-year round folks here like Dick like to think of him as they knew him—the boy who was not going back on him now, at least they feel sorry for the family.

This is the message which a Chicago visitor was given to take back home. There is no dissenting voice. From the car washer at the garage to the owners of the hotels and banks came words of friendship and sympathy for the family of the youth who is under indictment for the murder of Robert Franks.

Help the Town. The Loeb's are the most prominent family in Charlevoix. Although they are here only a few months of the year, they are looked to as leaders. One of the reasons is that Albert Loeb, Dick's father, has done more for the town than any one else.

A Good Fellow. The boys of the town are agreed that Dick Loeb is a good fellow and they like him. They're not so enthusiastic over Nathan Leopold. Dick and Nathan came to Charlevoix last winter and took the boys of the town with them on the mid-winter sports.

Dick, the boys say, gave them a splendid time for he's a good mixer. Dick attended the fete for all dances. The girl he dated with most last summer was a waitress at one of the hotels. She was a college girl who paid for her summer vacation by waiting tables.

The boys say that Dick did not drink more than the other boys of the rich summer colony. And there are no stories of particular escapades. Most of the crowd of youthful visitors drink, the natives say, dash up and down the streets of the town in their cars, and make say in the little restaurants and at the dances. But Dick's behavior never brought censure.

The Town's Worry. Everybody here is talking about the murder. The town's greatest worry, it seems, is that the tragedy will keep the Loeb's away from Charlevoix. The folks here are afraid the big estate will be vacant this summer.

The Loeb estate is about four miles southeast of the town. It has a great, wide spreading home, built of boulders, and standing on a high bluff, overlooks Pine lake. A bonhomie with a private landing on the beach is just beneath the front door. There are well lawns, as well kept as a park; poplars and pines shade the house.

Neater the road are cattle and horse barns, tenant houses, and the home of Ernest Loeb, Dick's older brother. Ernest manages the farm. Fine blooded cattle, horses, sheep, geese, and chickens are kept in flocks better than those of the residences of the town. There is a baseball diamond and stone bleachers at the farm, where the tenants, the boys and the country people have baseball games.

One citizen of Charlevoix epitomized the attitude of his neighbors when he said: "I can't believe Dick Loeb killed that boy. If he really was in on this thing, it's because Nathan Leopold led him on and deceived him."

'FINGY' CONNERS, AT 67 YEARS, IS MARRIED AGAIN

New York, June 6.—(Special.)—William J. Conners, 67, of Buffalo and Palm Beach, has become a bridegroom for the third time. It became known today. The bride of the veteran politician and newspaper owner was Miss Grace J. Hammond, formerly of Brooklyn and recently of St. Petersburg, Fla., who is about 30.

The couple were found in their suite at the Ritz. Mr. Conners was asked: "Were you married last March?" "Yes," he replied. His contradicted reports that his wife, who is described as having striking auburn hair, was interested in a news stand and maintaining establishment at Palm Beach, Fla., who is about 30.

SUICIDE LEAVES $2 TO PAY FOR HIS DEATH GAS

Before committing suicide yesterday in his room at 1400 Bryant place Joseph Kohn wrote a note of apology to his landlord and enclosed $2 to pay for the gas. Then he turned on the jets.

Kohn, a 33 year old ex-service man, was found dead on the bed when Charles Devy forced an entrance to his room. Nearby lay this note: "Your pardon, please, for using your home for an act of this kind. I have become so despondent lately that I have lost all desire to live. Kindly notify my sister, Mrs. Ida Blum, 722 South Lapeer avenue, New Orleans, and she will make the necessary arrangements. I enclose you will find $2 to pay for the gas I have used."

U. OF C. EXPERT PRAISES JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOLS

State-wide establishment of the junior high school as the result of the expansion of American education was predicted by Prof. Charles H. Judd, director of the school of education of the University of Chicago, at the City club yesterday.

"The essential features of the junior high school," he said, "are the breadth of curriculum, attention to individual differences, attention to preparation for the pupils' later adult activities."

Dr. Judd's address was the first of two City club forum discussions on the junior schools. The second will be given by Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Illinois Federation of Labor, next Wednesday.

Mexican Assassins Slay American Mining Chief

Nogales, Ariz., June 6.—Charles F. Sturtevant, an American mining man, was shot to death at Mazatlan, Sinaloa, Mexico, yesterday by assassins who escaped, according to advices received here today.

St. Lake City, June 6.—Charles F. Sturtevant is a former resident of Utah, and his wife resides here. Several days ago Mrs. Sturtevant received a letter from her husband that he had been threatened by a man whom he discharged.

BE FAIR MINDED, COOLIDGE TELLS YOUNG AMERICA

Gives Orators His Hopes of Next Generation.

Washington, D. C., June 6.—The duty resting upon the present generation to establish among the coming generation "the full conception of the obligation to reasonableness and to moderation" was emphasized by President Coolidge tonight in an address made as the presiding officer of the national oratorical contest held here in Memorial continental hall.

The President in a discussion of the constitution—the subject of the addresses delivered by seven high school boys and girls in the contest for national oratorical honors—declared the American constitutional system had justified itself not only in the nation's history, but "in the fact that it has been accepted as the model upon which have been the preceding efforts of Democratic-Republican institutions have been based."

No Systems "Perfect." "Impressive as have been the results of our experiment, gratifying as have been the tributes, which institution is not yet perfect," he continued. "All forms of human organization must forever undergo the process of change, adaptation, evolution, to fit themselves to the changing needs of a society which can never remain stagnant. Civilization can never stand still. The institutions under which it developed cannot remain unchanged. Change is inevitable and there must be intelligent capacity to direct that change in the right way."

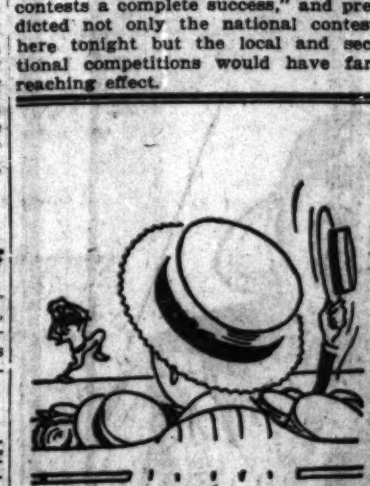

If we accept this postulate of the eternal mutability of institutions, then we will be able to realize how great a service is that of the men and women who would train the youth of the nation to understanding of and to interest in these institutions of ours.

Importance of the Educator. "There is no greater obligation upon the community than that of properly educating its youth, of training its future citizens for the duties which in their time they must assume. The world has always contained a dangerous large proportion of people who have believed that the way of progress was by way of destruction. They are commonly in a minority, but a distressingly active and determined minority. They would begin the reconstruction of human affairs by tearing down everything that has thus far been erected."

It seems as if well nigh every generation in modern times is destined to try some of these experiments in reorganization by the process of utter disorganization. The eagerness of the extremists, the revolutionists, is unquestionable.

Attitude of Safety. "The only assurance against their machinations is to be found in the inclusion among the people of sound ideas of government. If we, in our generation, shall succeed in establishing among those who are to come after us the full conception of the obligation to reasonableness and to moderation, the next generation may find reason to thank us for making it way easier than ours has been. That, take it as the greatest collective work of humanity in every generation as it looks to the generations that are to follow."

The President praised the efforts of the newspapers who sponsored the contest, devoting "enormous publicity and inspirational effort to make these contests a complete success," and predicted not only the national contest here tonight but the local and sectional competitions would have far-reaching effect.

STREET CAR IN UPROAR AS COPS SHOOT SUSPECT

Nab Honeymooner as Hotel Bandit.

A middle aged bridegroom who says he is Dr. William Warren, but whose real name is said to be William Patterson, attempted to mess up his trip to the detective bureau last night by shooting Sgt. Charles Essig while on the rear platform of a crowded South Side street car. The gun of Sgt. George Brady talked first, however, and Dr. Warren was taken to the Bridewell hospital for repairs.

It is thought by the police to be the man who, sometime in company with a short statured accomplice, had been specializing in robbing the guests of large loop hotels. His arrest came a few hours after O'Connor's squad hurried there and waited. Soop Dr. Warren and his bride one month came along. The former yielded up one blue steel automatic, and then the detectives marched the couple to a street car.

Gagged and Robbed. Opening the door in response to a knock, Songstad faced a blue steel automatic. He was tied and gagged, robbed of $22 and a gold pencil, and then thrown into a clothes closet while the robber made a leisurely getaway.

When the report reached the bureau, detectives considered it significant that the short statured accomplice was not included in the most recent robbery. They believe he is already in a cell, having been arrested Friday in a cheap hotel. The name of the guest of the city is Edward J. Murphy.

Interviewing Murphy, Lieut. William E. O'Connor learned that his companion might be found at 2448 Michigan avenue. O'Connor's squad hurried there and waited. Soop Dr. Warren and his bride one month came along. The former yielded up one blue steel automatic, and then the detectives marched the couple to a street car.

Too Slow on Draw. Sgt. Essig was paying the fare when Dr. Warren suddenly whipped out a gun that was concealed in a shoulder holster. He aimed at Essig, but Sgt. Brady beat him to it. The detective's bullet struck the handle of Dr. Warren's revolver, grazed his knuckles and tore into his left shoulder. Passengers screamed. There was a scramble towards the front exit.

"Much obliged," said Sgt. Essig, shaking his squad mate's hand. "You're a good copper, and I don't mean 'maybe.'"

Detectives believe that Dr. Warren is the same man who, as Walter C. Barnes, shot his wife and mother-in-law in Chicago fifteen years ago, killing the latter. He has already been identified from his photograph as the bandit who robbed the chef of the Blackstone hotel a few weeks ago.

'GIMP'S' LUCKY STAR FAILS TO SHINE IN CELL

"Gimp" Rosenbaum, notorious bond runner, pickpocket, etc., was arraigned late yesterday afternoon and placed in a cell in the detective bureau. He will wait there until transferred to Joliet penitentiary. He probably will be taken down under heavy guard this morning.

The arrest was ordered by Chief of Detectives Michael Hughes following receipt of word from Springfield that the Illinois Supreme court had denied a motion for a review of Rosenbaum's conviction in a Cook county court. The conviction was based on a confidence game growing out of his "bond running" activities.

"Gimp" had managed to evade conviction for many years. Due, it was said, to his political "pull."

BODYGUARD WINS, GEM SALESMAN 2D, BANDIT 3D

Robber Loses $52,000 Dash; Jewels Saved.

Some $52,000 worth of uncut diamonds, accompanied by Henry Grifka of Milwaukee, sprinted down four flights of stairs yesterday noon while a youthful bandit made frantic efforts to catch up with them.

Gems clattered upon the steps like hailstones, but Mr. Grifka's speed was unabated. Spectators said he would have made the dash to the street at least four-fifths of a second faster if Isaac Blax hadn't been cluttering up the road. Mr. Blax was Mr. Grifka's bodyguard.

Tells His Story. "I've been stopping at the Morrison hotel," the latter a jewelry salesman, told the police. "When Joseph Bender, who runs the Midwest Jewelry Manufacturing company at 400 Blue Island avenue, telephoned and said he wanted to look at some diamonds, I took Mr. Blax along by way of protection."

The concern has offices on the fourth floor. As a matter of precaution Grifka latched the door before opening his gem case. Only Mrs. Bender was present to inspect the stones.

A few minutes passed and then a man clamored at the door. "They wouldn't let him in, but he returned to call out that Mrs. Bender's husband was on the wire at a nearby telephone. 'Tell him to wait,' was the reply. 'That appeared to settle the man in the hall. He crashed the door, according to Mr. Grifka of Milwaukee, and waggled a threatening gun. Perspiration stood upon the forehead of Mrs. Bender, but he failed to heed the command to raise his hands."

Bodyguard Sets Pace. Instead, he grabbed his diamond case and started out on his fifty carat dash. Mr. Blax, his intrepid bodyguard, led the way. And the bandit was not far behind.

"Police!" cried the bodyguard in some anguish as he reached the sidewalk.

The call was heeded by Policemen John Schultze, directing traffic a short distance away. He fired as he ran, eventually overtaking a young man who gave his name as John Burke, 6233 South Green street. It was reported that Mr. Grifka's bodyguard did not stop until he ran out of breath.

WETS, KLAN FOES, HAVE PLANKS FOR G. O. P. PLATFORM

Woman Wants Dry Pledge by Convention.

(By a Staff Correspondent.)
Cleveland, O., June 6.—(Special.)—The deliberations of the resolutions committee of the Republican national convention will be enlivened by proposals to incorporate in the platform planks declaring for beer and light wines and denouncing the Ku Klux Klan. A dry plank also is being prepared.

The wet plank will be submitted by a delegation headed by Ralph Weaver, Strasburg, who defeated Gov. Clifford Boucher, a dry, for delegate at large from Pennsylvania.

"The prohibition amendment, enacted while the patriotic fervor of the country was at its height, represents the most un-American and undemocratic chapter in our legislative history," said Mr. Weaver tonight. "It represented the will of an active and noisy minority foisted on the majority of patriotic citizens whose minds and bodies were then bent on winning the war."

Calls Enforcement Disgrace.
The alleged attempts to enforce it represent the most disgraceful chapter in our executive and judicial history. It has made cowards of many of our legislators, crooks of many of our officials, sneaks of many of our citizens, and has created an army of bootleggers. It has destroyed the respect for authority and is slowly undermining the morals of the country.

Dry Issue May Lose States.
The people of Pennsylvania do not want to reestablish the cursed saloons. They do not want whisky. They want beer and wine, and I shall urge the Republican convention to assert itself in the interest of law, order and honesty as against corruption and hypocrisy. If the convention attempts to pass out on this issue the Republican party will lose not only New York, but other eastern states."

Mrs. L. B. Thompson, Redbank, N. J., associate member of the national committee, will offer a dry plank based on the late President Harding's Denver speech. In that speech Mr. Harding called for strict observance of prohibition laws and set an example by swearing off indulgence in liquor completely.

Plank Hits Klan.
R. B. Crager, national committee man for Texas, will submit the anti-lynch plank, condemning any association or order which is based on racial or religious prejudice or both, and opposing the formation of any secret political society in the United States.

Mr. Crager believes he will have considerable support for his plank in the resolutions committee. He holds that he represents the sentiment of the party in the United States. This is a recognition of the senator's position in the councils of the party and of his devotion to the administration. There will not be much work for the credentials this time, however, as there are only half a dozen contests and the opposing delegates in every case are for Coolidge.

Building Trades Council to Ask No Pay Boosts

Instead of demanding an increase of wages, members of the Chicago Building Trades council voted last night to devote their energies to bringing about closed shop conditions here. After deciding unanimously not to make any effort towards raising the wage scale, they appointed a committee to formulate plans for the new campaign. The committee will meet Monday.

BALKAN POT NEAR BOILING POINT

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
ROME, June 6.—All indications from Albania point to a victory for the revolutionaries and there are signs that the Tirana government is willing to meet the rebels half way. Difficulties, if any, may arise when it comes to the question of recognition of the new nationalist government by the powers interested.

Jugo-Slavs Alarmed.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
VIENNA, June 6.—New difficulties between Italy and Jugo-Slavia threaten over the attitude observed by the Balkan powers toward the Albanian revolution. With the situation there becoming serious, Jugo-Slavia, Greece, and Italy all have made declarations of neutrality. Today the Belgrade government, through the inspired newspaper Politika, asserts that while Greece and Jugo-Slavia are observing this neutrality, Italy has already broken its faith by sending destroyers to Alessio.

DEMOCRATS FEAR LOWDEN AS MATE FOR COOLIDGE

Would Hurt Their State Ticket's Chances.

Illinois Democrats are deeply concerned over prospects that the Republican national convention will "draft" former Gov. Frank O. Lowden as the vice presidential nominee at Cleveland next week. And so is Gov. Len Small. As "natural enemies" of the Republican party, the Democrats, who appreciate Lowden's strength and popularity, realize that his name on the ticket would be a serious handicap to prospects for election of the Democratic state ticket in Illinois next fall.

And for the same reason Gov. Small is interested. Of all the G. O. P. statesmen whose names have been suggested in connection with the vice presidency Lowden is the most unsatisfactory to Small personally. But Small knows he would be helped by being on the same ticket with Lowden. For this reason persons close to him admit that he would be secretly gratified to see Lowden named as the Coolidge running mate next week.

No Rumors This Time.
Lowden's friends in the home state are enthusiastic over the proposed "draft" of the war governor. In the Cleveland convention, when the nominee for vice president is chosen, consideration of Lowden's name will bring forth no such rumormongers in the Illinois delegation as did his candidacy for president in 1920. Then the old Lowden-Thompson crowd joined in the maneuvers to defeat him.

Former Mayor William Hale Thompson, delegate to Cleveland, is expected to be a "good Indian" during the convention, partly because it would be folly to be otherwise. His antipathy to Lowden is as deep seated as is Small's, but he said yesterday he would "wait until he gets there" to decide what he will do in the balloting. Thompson's only comment was that he thought Lowden would be "satisfactory to Wall Street."

Has Petition Ready.
Incidentally, Mr. Thompson mentioned the matter that is closest to his heart these days—the row with Fred Lundin—and said he had 96,000 signed petitions ready to present to Gov. Small when the time comes for the showdown Thompson has demanded.

LOWDEN'S BOOM, RUNNING ON HIGH, SEEMS A WINNER

Seen as Best Candidate to Offset La Follette.

He is a practical farmer himself. Mr. Lowden is popular not only in Illinois but in Iowa and Minnesota, in both of which states he lived before going to Chicago.

It is possible that there are radical Republicans, Judge Kenyon of Iowa, for example, who would appeal more strongly to the discontented farmers, but a radical Republican is not wanted for running mate to Coolidge, and the conservative Republicans proposed Lowden is undoubtedly the most widely known and the most popular in the agricultural west.

Fields Striven with Dead.
LONDON, June 6.—(United Press.)—Battlefields before Tirana, the Albanian capital, are strewn with dead, the casualties exceeding 1,000, according to an Athens dispatch to the Daily Express today, quoting Durazzo advices.

Greece Also Armed.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
LONDON, June 6.—The correspondent of the London Daily Express cables from Constantinople that the British minister at Athens has informed the foreign office at London that Greece will send troops into Albanian territory to protect its interests, if Serbia carries out its present intention of occupying certain zones in Albania.

Might Prevent Bolt.
There are 51 Republican senators, 42 Democrats and 2 Farmer Laborites and 49 votes are required to elect. In view of his popularity in the northwest, whence half the radical Republican senators, Lowden, it is contended, would be more likely than any other candidate for vice president to hold these insurgents in line and prevent them bolting to the Democratic candidate.

"DUTY" CALL IS URGED ON LOWDEN; COOLIDGE REFUSES TO CHOOSE
Washington, D. C., June 6.—(Special.)—President Coolidge has no "candidate" for the vice presidential nomination at Cleveland.

This was made plain at the White House today in a manner that should settle all reports that Mr. Coolidge has picked out Frank O. Lowden, or Secretary Hoover, or any other man for this place and will attempt to manipulate the delegates.

"The President does not change his mind every four days," the White House spokesman said. "There is no promotion of any kind for Vice President here."

At the same time Mr. Lowden is regarded as not only acceptable to the administration leaders but his acceptance of the nomination may be put up to him as a party necessity and a duty which he could not well avoid.

Friends of Mr. Lowden have received assurances during the last ten days that he will not accept the nomination under any circumstances. The present situation, where he appears to emerge as the most logical man for the place, may force him to make a public statement. Until he does that the pressure toward him and upon him will continue.

The President expects to go to the capitol tomorrow evening to sign bills. Among his callers today were Senator Borah of Idaho and Senators Fess and Willis of Ohio.

to fight the Lowden boom in the convention next week to the last ditch.

Old Guard in Waiver.
The old guardmen in the national committee have climbed aboard the Lowden bandwagon with great alacrity and enthusiasm. They not only want to save the ticket out on the prairie, but they want to save something of their old influence in the party.

They are in danger of being exiled by the new crowd which is coming into control of the party with President Coolidge and his political manager.

William S. Butler, the next chairman of the national committee. The old guard committeemen don't know Coolidge. They do know Lowden. The old guard committeemen don't know Coolidge. They do know Lowden. The old guard committeemen don't know Coolidge. They do know Lowden.

The general belief is that Charles O. Dawes has eliminated himself pretty effectively by his statements that he would not take the nomination, doubt of the wisdom of naming him being entertained by those impressed by the opportunity of organized labor to his minute men of the constitution, accused of fostering the open shop.

A suggestion frequently heard is that if Lowden effectively takes himself out of the reckoning for the nomination Dr. Marion Burton, president of the University of Michigan, may project himself into the running by his speech presenting the name of Coolidge for the nomination.

Prohibitionists Nominate H. P. Faria for President

Columbus, O., June 6.—H. P. Faria of Clinton, Mo., was nominated for the presidency today by the prohibition national convention, on the first ballot. He received eighty-two votes, forty being cast for A. P. Gouthey of Seattle, and two for William F. Warner of New York.

Washington, D. C., June 6.—(Special.)—Honest, gifted, affable and possessing an experience of forty years in national politics, a man who, as temporary chairman of the Keynote speech on Tuesday has latched the that might have made him of the United States.

He lacked the audacity changes. Theodore Elihu Burton when chance beckoned, he would rather be safe than sorry.

That decision ultimately ren Harding President.

Won't Be as White
So, instead of sitting White House next week at glad tidings from Cleveland Elihu Burton will make an early speech at Cleveland and from the scene.

The close of the convention find him to be is an old-fashioned trusted member of the house of representatives. Shakespearean in it, the national law, the best in the best in rivers and harbors.

And our greatest leader. Once in the Sixty-second that was a dozen years ago then a senator, talked for a filibuster to defeat a harbors bill.

Dignified, Informing.
At Cleveland he will be dignified, but he will be dignified. He will also be dignified at 74 men do not change a lifetime.

Safe, too, will be he. It is not alone his motto. It is his story.

Not in the old days when call a reactionary, he never had with the Taft crowd and when the debate came, Theodore Elihu Burton drew that he was in so bad with progress that there was naught but worry and in seeking re-election in 1912.

And Harding Steps
There he was wrong. The politics of no word that times call their operation policy must be that way, and to Goethe, "It is politics in the in any case. Theodore Elihu did not seek re-election in 1912.

In that re-election went man with a middle name. Elihu Warren Gamaliel Burton, his name was Burton and he was for five years fellow in the senate that crowd was well disposed hour struck that made him able as nominee for the Burton would have been available had he stuck around.

Now His Bell Ring
Now Harding is silent and Burton is the glory of another. Burton's greatest service trymen has been his saving of millions upon millions in harbor bills. Once those mostly lost ravished from by means of log-rolling.

He reorganized all that many kinds of neighbors which examined the bills, suit that he and they met and scientific, and he no appropriation to be of committee until it was by men who were not the.

The tragedy if you were grim a word of Burton that that career has been long as it was independent land politics before he latched figure he stood strong against the gang, and he became wise in both Republican and Democratic because they trusted him in his probity and and they sent him to monetary conferences and international deliberations country needed a scholar.

Like William Morgan, new chairman of the National committee, Burton's son. That places Elihu like men that great fearing homes.

KEYNOTER SAFE, WISE WITH BIG BUMP OF CAUTION

Might Have Been President but for the Bump.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.
Washington, D. C., June 6.—(Special.)—Honest, gifted, affable, leonard, and possessing an experience of nearly forty years in national politics, the man who, as temporary chairman, will make the keynote speech at Cleveland on Tuesday has lacked the one thing that might have made him President of the United States.

He lacked the audacity to take a chance.

Theodore Ellsah Burton in an hour when chance beckoned, decided that he would rather be safe than be President.

That decision ultimately made Warren Harding President.

Woon't Be at White House.

So, instead of sitting in the cool White House next week and awaiting glad tidings from Cleveland, Theodore Ellsah Burton will make a long, scholarly speech at Cleveland and then step from the scene.

The close of the convention will find him what he is—an old, wise, experienced, trusted member of the house of representatives—the best Shakespearean in it, the best in international law, the best in high finance, the best in rivers and harbors legislation.

And our greatest long distance talker.

Once in the sixty-second congress—that was a dozen years ago—Burton, then a senator, talked for fifteen hours in a filibuster to defeat a rivers and harbors bill.

Dignified, Informing, Lengthy.

At Cleveland he will not be thrilling, but he will be dignified and informing. He will also be lengthy, for at 74 men do not change the ways of a lifetime.

Safe, too, will be. Safety first is not alone his motto. It is his life story.

Not in the old days when you could call a reactionary, he nevertheless cast his lot with the Taft crowd in 1912, and when the debacle came the warning Senator-Burton drew from it was that he was in so bad with the Ohio progressives that there would be naught but worry and more debacle in seeking renomination as senator.

And Harding Stepped In.

There he was wrong. The whimsies of politics are so weird that men sometimes call their operation fate. Napoleon felt that way, and once he said to Goethe, "It is politics that is fate."

In any case, Theodore Ellsah Burton did not seek renomination as senator in 1914.

That renomination went to another man with a middle name out of the Bible—Warren Gamaliel Harding. To his amazement Harding was elected and he was for five years so good a fellow in the senate that the senate crowd was well disposed when the hour struck that made Harding available as nominee for the presidency.

Burton would have been just as available had he stuck around.

Now Harding is silent with his brief glories and Burton is bell ringer to the glory of another.

Burton's greatest service to his countrymen has been his saving to them of millions upon millions in rivers and harbors bills. Once those bills were mostly lost rushed from the treasury by means of log-rolling.

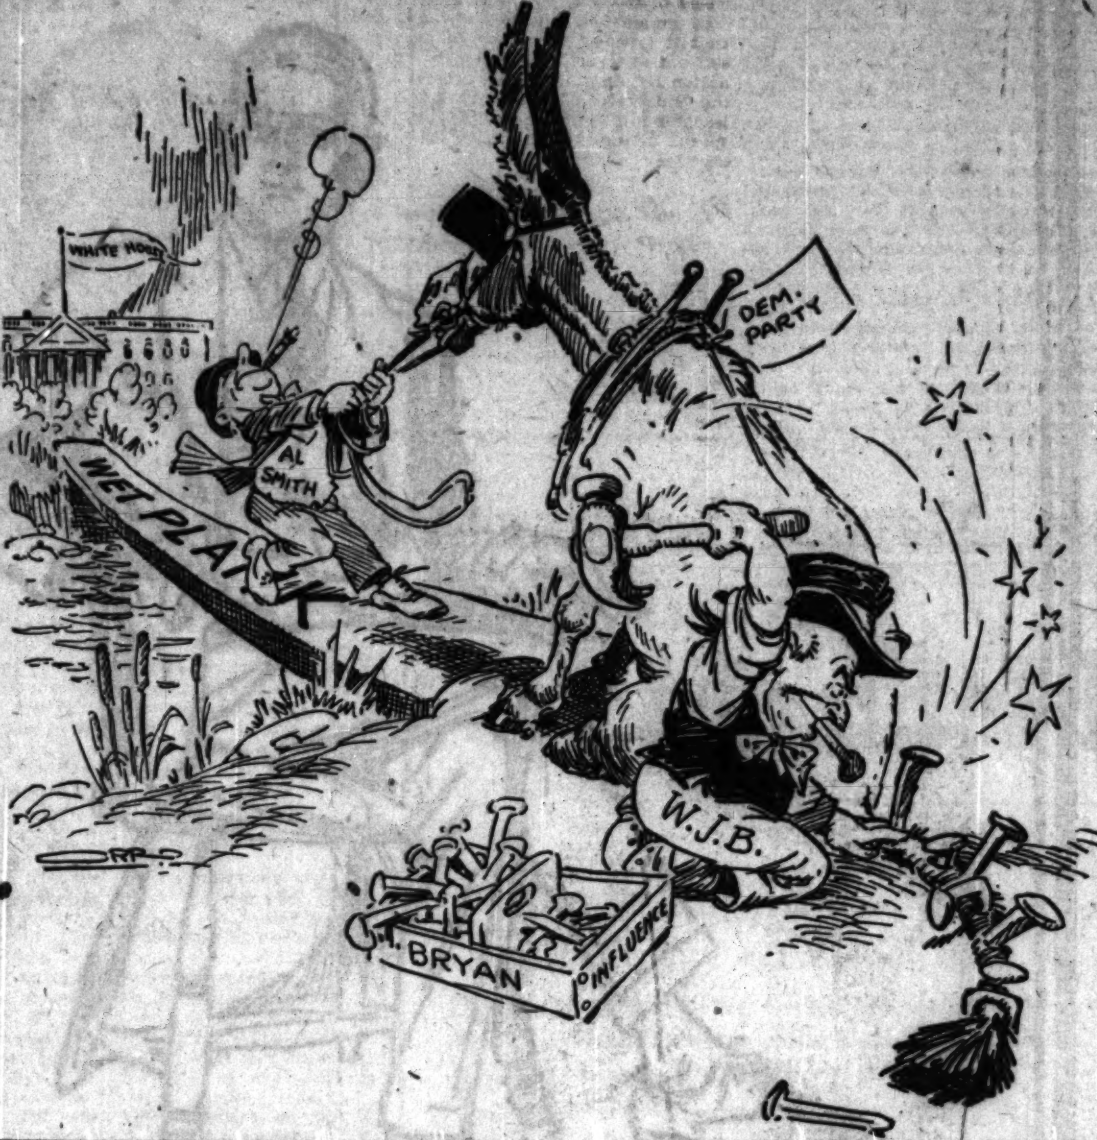

He reorganized all that. He created many kinds of neighboring boards which examined the bills, with the result that he and they made them honest and scientific, and he would permit no appropriation to be reported out of committee until it was validated by men who were not thieves.

The tragedy—if you want to use so grim a word—of Burton's career is that that career has been brilliant as long as it was independent. In Cleveland politics before he became a national figure he stood out clear and strong against the gang, and when his field became wider he was honored by both Republican and Democratic Presidents because they trusted him—because of his probity and his learning—and they sent him to interparliamentary conferences and such like international deliberations where our country needed a scholar and a gentleman.

Like William Morgan Butler, the new chairman of the Republican national committee, Burton is a preacher's son. That pleases Uncle Calvin. He likes men that grew up in God-fearing homes.

INSURGENT BOB LOSES AND WINS IN SENATE BOUTS

Storing Up Campaign Powder, Is Belief.

Washington, D. C., June 6.—(Special.)—Insurgent La Follette of Wisconsin today led his followers into a double attack on the senate in which he found his small group fighting single handed on one question though perhaps eventually victorious in the other.

Learning that his resolution for a senate investigation through the summer of campaign expenditures was being smothered in the audit committee, he plunged into a fiery attack on both parties. Tomorrow, he served notice, he will move to discharge the committee and to bring the resolution to the floor for a decision "as to whether a few senators can decide the policies of the senate."

In this he seemed likely of victory for Curtis of Kansas, Republican whip, (Rep., Utah), and Reed (Dem., Mo.) hastily called him into a thirty minute cloakroom conference in which, it is understood, it was agreed the resolution would be brought to a vote.

Block German Relief Plan.

But when he attacked the foreign affairs committee, headed by Lodge (Rep., Mass.), he found a stone wall. He moved that he be discharged from further consideration of his resolution to give $10,000,000 for aid to "starving German women and children" and thus brought the resolution to the floor for action.

The senate tonight voted down the La Follette motion, 23 to 63, thus practically killing the proposal for German aid at this session.

A rough and tumble debate running through half the afternoon and well into the night found the Democrats, who have sided with La Follette in most of this session, deserting him. The cloakroom gossip after the debate was: "La Follette has loaded another gun for his own campaign—forcing the senate to act adversely on another of his pet plans, that he may attack both parties this summer."

The German relief bill was pictured by La Follette as another farm relief measure, for it provides that the money shall be spent in buying American farm products. On this angle he is expected to argue that the senate has again refused to aid the farmer.

Leandro Supporter Colleague.

On the German children plan, La Follette found his colleague, Leandro (Rep., Wis.), as virtually his only support in the debate. Swanson (Dem., Va.), Haffin (Dem., Ala.), Walsh (Dem., Mass.), and other prominent Democrats bitterly opposed him, as did Willis (Rep., O.) and several other Republicans.

Through most of it La Follette sat nervously drumming his fingers on his chair. The substance of his appeal was that there is more need for relief around America than around Germany. He characterized the farm relief argument as "subterfuge."

More heed was paid to the Wisconsin senator's declaration about campaign expenditures.

"Beginning in 1886," La Follette said, "the corrupt expenditure of money in political campaigns has grown in a manner that menaces the principles of our elections. The investigations conducted here have shown how political parties have been corruptly used and how efforts have been made to grasp the very government itself through money."

Expenditure of $3,000,000 for general improvements during the next few months was voted by the south park commissioners at a board meeting yesterday. In addition they approved the million dollar bond issue for the completion of the widening and extension of South Park avenue, which will connect Grand boulevard and the outer drive in Grant park.

Most of the work for which they voted the $1,000,000 is under way and includes the completion of the Grant park stadium, improvement of the Roosevelt road viaduct, and strengthening the Eighth street viaduct, which is declared to be unsafe.

NEW G. O. P. ROWS OVER DELEGATES AIRED AND FIXED

Cleveland, O., June 6.—A compromise agreement was made today by Henry Lincoln Johnson, Republican national committeeman from Georgia, for settlement of a contest from the Third Georgia district.

By the agreement A. L. Felton of Americus, Ga., the Johnson delegate, and E. S. Richardson of Marshallville, in addition Richardson, superintendent of a Negro orphanage school, was recognized as chairman of the district organization.

The Ku Klux Klan issue was brought before the committee for the first time in the hearings on the contest from the Fourteenth Texas district. J. B. Elgin of San Antonio told the committee that there had been a charge at the Dallas convention that W. B. Halsey of Sinton, Tex., was a "Ku Kluxer."

Halsey was elected with Dr. Frederick Terrell of San Antonio by a district convention. The issue was not decided today.

By unanimous vote the committee then seated four delegates at large from Arkansas, headed by National Committeeman H. L. Hemmel of Little Rock. The committee threw out the claim of a bolting delegation headed by Scipio A. Jones, a Negro. Remmel characterized Jones' case as absurd.

The committee then adjourned until tomorrow.

ENGINEER HELD ON GRAVE CHARGE.

Oscar Doster, 37, 808 East 30th street, an engineer for the Illinois Central railroad, was arraigned yesterday on a charge of criminality attacking his 11 year old daughter. The case was continued to June 12.

THREE CHILDREN LOSE LIVES AS AUTOS HIT THEM

County's Speed Clock Points to 253.

Three children were killed, and a boy and a young woman were severely injured in automobile accidents yesterday. The county's death toll since Jan. 1 raised to a total of 253.

While returning home from school, Helen Kuperswold, 6 years old, 1821 West Chicago avenue was struck and killed by a motor truck driven by Leo Tworogowski, 3229 North Albany avenue. Tworogowski was held.

Dragged by Auto.

Bohemil Riha, 15 years old, 2512 South Sawyer avenue, died in St. Anthony's hospital shortly after he was struck, while at West 24th street and Spaulding avenue, by an automobile driven by Louis W. Allen, 122 North Keeler avenue.

Allen was held for the inquest when witnesses said he had been driving at a high rate of speed, and that the boy was dragged nearly twenty-five feet underneath the automobile.

His Crossing Street.

Miss Helen Knapp, 2100 North Albany avenue, was crossing Humboldt boulevard at Armitage avenue when she was struck and injured by an automobile driven by Irvin Seaman, 933 North Oakley boulevard.

Despite a coroner's jury's verdict which exonerated two drivers of blame in the death of an aged man, the police yesterday had Harry Goldberg, 19, and William Brown, 16 years old, arraigned before Judge Heider in the Boys' court. Their automobiles collided and fatally injured Joseph Cooperman, 1219 West Roosevelt road, a pedestrian.

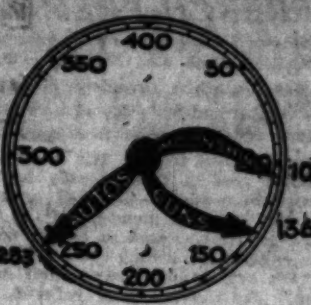

CANADA AND U. S. SIGN TREATY TO STOP BOOTLEGS

Washington, D. C., June 6.—A treaty designed to suppress smuggling of liquor and narcotics across the Canadian boundary was signed here today by representatives of the American and Canadian governments.

The agreement under negotiation for several months, was signed by Secretary Hughes, and for Canada by Minister of Justice Ernest La Pointe.

Each government is to furnish information, on request, regarding clearances of vessels or the transportation of cargoes, shipments, or loads of articles across the international boundary when the importation is subject to duty.

HANDS OF DEATH

DEVINE PLANS CAMPAIGNS FOR SUMMER MONTHS

State Representative John P. Devine, manager of the Democratic downstate campaign, had a war council yesterday with his chief lieutenants at state headquarters in the Hotel Sherman. With one exception his committee of eleven "was on hand to mix the 'bad medicine' for their Republican enemies."

The downstate campaign will be thrown into high gear immediately after the national conventions are over. Mr. Devine said, and Jeffersonian orators and missionaries will enliven the summer months with intensive campaigning.

Nominees will have to cut their vacations short in order to make the schedule Devine and his committee are outlining in the downstate districts this summer. Those who attended the conference were John V. Riley, Rockyford; George Dyson, Rushville; Ben W. Alpinier, Kankakee; Warren H. Orr, Carthage; Frank J. Purcell, Du Quoin; John A. MacNeill, Quincy; M. M. Stephens, East St. Louis; John J. Parrish, Harrisburg; and James A. Meeks, Danville.

When Senator Gooding reminded the senate that he had introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of the transactions of the government corporation, the Virginia senator took the floor. He did not go into details of the legal question, and the incident closed almost as quickly as it had arisen.

GLASS ACCUSES FELLOW SENATOR OF BREAKING LAW

Refers to Dealings with War Finance Body.

Washington, D. C., June 6.—Senator Glass (Dem., Va.) charged in the senate tonight that Senator Gooding (Rep., Idaho), on the basis of the latter's own statements with reference to his relations with the War Finance corporation, had done "something expressly prohibited by the federal statutes and is subject to a fine of $3,000."

Senator Gooding, the Virginia senator declared, had said a corporation in which he was interested had received loans from the War Finance corporation, and Mr. Glass added that he would demand an investigation.

Senator Glass made his charge after Senator Hedin (Dem., Ala.) had questioned Senator Stanfield (Rep., Ore.) concerning his dealings with the War Finance corporation, the latter having said a corporation in which he was interested had organized to assist farmers and had made extensive loans from the War Finance corporation.

When Senator Gooding reminded the senate that he had introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of the transactions of the government corporation, the Virginia senator took the floor. He did not go into details of the legal question, and the incident closed almost as quickly as it had arisen.

FAIL TO SETTLE SALES BASIS OF SURFACE LINES

City and Owners Still Are Far Apart.

Administration leaders were not as sanguine yesterday that their months of negotiations with traction officials and owners to fix a basis for the city's purchase of the street car lines will result successfully.

The conferees still fail to agree on a "fair price." So the city's anticipated program for acquisition of surface and elevated lines, as well as for subway construction, may not be forthcoming this summer.

A few days ago, it was reported that Mayor Dever had agreed with the traction officials on submission to the council of a purchase proposal based upon adherence to the terms of the 1907 settlement ordinance, obligating the city to pay the capital account value of the properties, $142,500,000.

Storms of protest arose. The mayor denied such a plan was being considered.

Fits Blame on Companies.
Explaining the impasse, one of the mayor's advisers declared that an agreement has been reached between the owners of the surface and elevated lines to enforce their individual demands on the city. Neither will sell until the other has been satisfied, he said.

Negotiations with the elevated lines' owners were to have been undertaken next week, it is understood. Various estimates of the value of the elevated properties have been made, ranging from $33,000,000 to $38,000,000.

Can't Predict Future.
"I don't know just what there will be for us to discuss in next week's meeting," declared one city official. "If it is true that the elevated and surface lines have an agreement to force the city into line, what chance have we got?"

"Even if the franchisees are allowed to expire in 1927, with no provision for purchase of the lines by the city, we can't hope to drive the cars off the streets."

The traction interests, it is said, are anxious that a purchase proposal, preferably that credited to the administration a few days ago and denied by the mayor, should be submitted to the people. Its almost certain repudiation by the voters would pave the way, they believe, to the granting of new franchises at a subsequent referendum.

SURFACE LINES AGREE TO MAKE 8 EXTENSIONS

Plan Million Dollar
Job This Summer.

In compliance with a recent order issued by the Illinois commerce commission, the Chicago surface lines will begin work on the extension of eight terminal branches before the middle of this summer, it was learned yesterday. The commission's order was issued in answer to petitions filed by Corporation Counsel F. X. Busch, which stated the traction companies have refused to build the additions in districts now poorly served.

Lines Agree to All But Three.
In the original petitions the corporation counsel requested extensions on eleven lines. With the exception of three, the surface lines have agreed to meet the demands of the city. The rejected extension proposals include that in 31st street from Kedzie to Crawford; Robey street from 33d to 35th; and 47th street from Kedzie avenue to Archer avenue. Further hearings will be held on these cases. The work of extending the terminals on the eight lines will cost about $1,000,000.

Name the Extensions.
Under the order of the commission the surface lines have agreed to the following extensions:

Kedzie avenue from Foster avenue to 37th street.
Fullerton avenue from Long avenue to Central avenue.
Belmont avenue from Central avenue to Cicero avenue.
Lawrence avenue from Broadway, 1,100 feet east of Sheridan road.
Milwaukee avenue from Carman avenue to city limits.

Seventy-first street from Western avenue to California avenue.
Fifty-ninth street from Kedzie avenue to Central Park avenue.
Western avenue from Seventy-first street to Seventy-fifth street.

Under the ordinance the traction companies are bound to build twenty-three miles of track extensions annually. No effort has been made for several years to comply with this provision.

MILLERAND PUTS IN DAY HUNTING FRENCH PREMIER

(Chicago Tribune Special.)
PARIS, June 6.—No left cabinet is possible while President Millerand remains in office, "Edouard Herriot, leader of the Radical Socialists, told THE TRIBUNE today. His statement follows reports from Elysée palace, where the president conferred throughout the day with members of the left caucus. He was seeking to find some one capable of forming the ministry. "We are standing pat on our decision," M. Herriot, who refused the premiership yesterday, continued. "Nothing is changed since we defined our attitude. You notice the bureau is quiet, with the franc holding its own. Evidently there is no financial reaction to destroy confidence."

President Millerand expects to play a trump card tomorrow when Theodore Steeg, an old political warrior and now governor of Algeria, arrives in Paris. He will be requested to form a government.

BONNIE MAGIN SUES UNCLE OF SENATOR ELKINS

New York, June 6.—(Special.)
Twenty years ago John T. Davis, millionaire son of the late Henry Gameway Davis of Elkina, W. Va., promised repeatedly to marry her, Bonnie Magin, once popular comedienne in Weber and Fields' burlesques, declared in a breach of promise suit.

Miss Magin was directed by Supreme Court Justice Thayer to submit to an examination tomorrow as to whether she knew Davis was married during this time. Davis says she did not know he was married until 1910. He then made an agreement to pay her $300 a month for life in return for his release, she says.

The last payment under this agreement was made about November, 1922. Davis, who is an uncle of United States Senator Elkins, was named as correspondent a few years ago in a divorce suit brought by David W. Sullivan of Washington, D. C.

Secretary May Be to Senate Inqu

Washington, D. C., June 6.—(Special.)
Secretary Mellon, instead of acting as a witness before the Hart committee, entered formally today to the charge that he had been a "whiskey permit plot" with Uphaus and Rex Sheldon, money for the deficit of the U.S. national committee.

Mr. Mellon's letter denies that he ever held an interview with Undersecretary of the Treasury, Gilbert, on the subject of the permit. A few minutes later, Thomas W. Miller, alien prosecutor, who was a witness in the investigation of the Mellon company case, testified that he had met with Mellon and Gilbert on May 11, 1921, and that the conversation related to the Mellon company case.

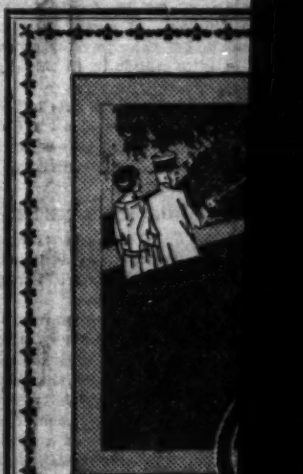

May Call Mr. Mellon.
Mr. Mellon may be called to stand after the committee offers to furnish witnesses statements in his letter, which says: "It is difficult to reply to statements which are either misleading, or false, and which for their entire effectiveness, are based on what is not fact. I record some answers should be made."

Mr. Mellon states that he has been in the line of banks which were formerly connected with loans secured by whiskey. He says that these banks are therefore not in the line of banks which were formerly connected with loans secured by whiskey.

Not a Common Fraud.
"Since prohibition none of the banks has made or held any loans secured by the security of whiskey. Since the collaterals have been realized on and, therefore, secured by such collateral, the loans secured by a bank to question whether such loans are in the line of banks which were formerly connected with loans secured by whiskey."

Mr. Mellon states that the arrangement with Rex Sheldon once did come to an end, as I recall, not in connection with the Mellon company case, but about which there was no usual, was not granted by the treasury to whom he had been loaning money.

Senator Bursum did come some time in December about granting permits, just come in to recommend some

MELLON BRANDS MEANS' WHISKY STORIES UNTRUE

Secretary May Be Called to Senate Inquiry.

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—Secretary Mellon, instead of appearing as a witness before the Brookhart committee, entered formal denial by letter today to the charges of George B. Means that he had entered into a "whisky permit plot" with Fred W. Upham and Rex Sheldon to raise money for the deficit of the Republican national committee.

Mr. Mellon's letter denied that Means had ever held an interview with him. Undersecretary of Treasury Gilbert on the subject of the whisky permits. A few minutes later, Col. Thomas W. Miller, alien property custodian, who was a witness in a reserved investigation of the American Metals company case, testified that Means and Gilbert met in his office on May 18, 1921, and that the conversation related to Rex Sheldon and permits.

May Call Mr. Mellon. Mr. Mellon may be called to the stand after the committee recess. He offers to furnish witnesses to prove statements in his letter, which says: "It is difficult to reply concisely to statements which are either partial, misleading, or false, and which depend for their entire effectiveness on insinuation and not on facts. But for the record some answer should undoubtedly be made."

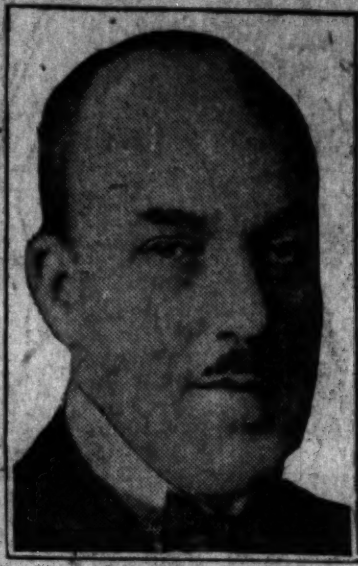

Mr. Means states that banks, particularly the line of banks with which I was formerly connected, have large loans secured by whisky certificates; that these banks are therefore interested in realizing on what Mr. Means calls 'frozen assets' and, therefore, in 'bootlegging'.

Not a Common Practice. "Since prohibition none of these banks has made or held any loan whatsoever on the security of whisky certificates. Since the collateral cannot be realized on and, therefore, loans secured by such collateral would not be sound loans for a bank to make. I question whether such loans exist in this country to any material extent."

Mr. Means states that I had some arrangements with Rex Sheldon for the issuance of wholesale drug permits, conditioned on contributions from the holders of these permits to the Republican campaign fund. Mr. Sheldon once did come to see me, but, as I recall, not in connection with permits. I understand that his request, about which there was nothing unusual, was not granted by the official of the treasury to whom I referred him.

Senator Bursum did come to see me some time in December, 1921, about granting permits, just as others come in to recommend some action by the treasury. The regulations under the Volstead act provide for the issuance of permits to wholesale drug houses and to manufacturers using alcohol. "Senator Bursum presented to me a list of applicants for such permits. I turned this list over to Mr. Blair, the commissioner of internal revenue, for investigation to determine the responsibility and character of the applicants, as is the usual course. In three of the cases this investigation was satisfactory and the permits issued."

MINORITY REPORT ON TEAPOT DOME SCORES INQUIRY

Washington, D. C., June 6.—[Special.]—Charges that the Teapot Dome committee majority report, submitted yesterday by Senator Walsh (Dem., Mont.), contained many conclusions not justified by the testimony and had been rushed through the committee, were made today in a minority report given the senate.

Those signing the minority statement were Senators Spencer (Rep., Mo.), Smoot (Rep., Utah), Stanford (Rep., Ore.), Cameron (Rep., Ariz.), and Bursum (Rep., N. M.). The minority report said: "No adequate opportunity has been given them to examine the report which has been submitted. The final hearings are not yet returned from the printer."

"A casual reading of the report indicates many mistakes and conclusions and inferences of fact and law which, in the judgment of the undersigned, are unwarranted by the testimony."

BRITAIN TO GIVE TREATY VOICE TO ALL DOMINIONS

BY JOHN STEELE.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

LONDON, June 6.—David Lloyd George emerged from the comparative obscurity in which he has remained for the last few months in the house of commons this afternoon to lead a bitter attack on Lord Curzon and the former Tory government for its cavalier method of treating with great self-governing dominions in connection with the management of their affairs. The immediate cause for the attack was the protest by Canada that she had not been represented at the Lausanne conference at which a treaty was made with the Turks, and her declaration that she would not ratify the treaty until it had been approved by the Canadian parliament. The attack was opened by Sir Edward Grigg, formerly Lloyd George's secretary and right hand man, who said a very serious departure had been made from the recent practice in not inviting the dominions to be represented at conferences in which the treaties involving the whole empire were made.

Lord Curzon was defended by Ronald MacNeill, who was formerly undersecretary of foreign affairs. Mr. MacNeill said as far as he knew Canada was told what was going on and made no objection.

Attacks Lausanne Treaty.

"If anything could add to the gravity of the situation," Mr. Lloyd George said, "it would be the defense just made. I am not surprised he knew nothing about it. Undersecretaries are not supposed to know too much." Mr. Lloyd George then attacked the Lausanne treaty itself, which he said gave up capitulations without which no business could be done with the Turks. He told the story of a Turkish merchant who insured a ship, and when it came back safe, he sued in a Turkish court for the return of the premium, because he had made nothing out of it. The Turkish court gave a verdict in his favor.

The whole trouble, he said, was that on account of the Lausanne treaty the Turk believed he was the victor and was giving himself the airs of a victor.

Says Canada Will Sign.

Prime Minister MacDonald then announced that Canada had finally agreed to ratify the treaty of Lausanne and that the important thing now was to decide what was going to be the future procedure in such cases.

"I am giving no pledge but I think the time will come when we must consider in view of the present circumstances what further machinery is needed for the conduct of the United Empire policy, particularly in regard to foreign affairs," Mr. MacDonald said. "I would therefore suggest that this situation be made the subject of a careful inquiry by the representatives of the dominions and the constitutional authorities. It is essential, however, that we should have the power of rapid ratification."

WORLD GIRDLING YANKEE FLYERS START FOR AMOY

SHANGHAI, June 7 (Saturday).—

(By the Associated Press.)—The American army around the world flyers left here at 4:45 a. m. today for Amoy.

The American aviators, who were separated at Kagoehima, Lieut. Lowell H. Smith and his mechanic Lieut. Leslie P. Arnold being delayed at Kagoehima, Japan, by engine trouble, are together again on the first jump in the third division of the first around the world flight, 556 miles from Shanghai to Amoy. In this jump the flyers plan to cross Chekiang and the greater part of Fukien, two of the great provinces of China. They are just a month behind their original schedule, the original plan being for them to reach Amoy on May 2. Bad weather in Alaska and crossing the Pacific, however, delayed them. From Amoy they fly 900 miles to Hongkong.

Arrived at Amoy by Destroyer. AMOY, China, June 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—The American destroyer Tracy, on duty with the American round world aerial expedition, arrived here today in preparation for the flyers' hop from Shanghai tomorrow.

Portuguese Reach Hongkong. RANGOON, British India, June 6.—(By the Associated Press.)—Balked by adverse weather conditions in their effort to fly here yesterday, the Portuguese aviators flying from Lisbon to Amoy, carried out the flight successfully today. They made the journey in four and a half hours. They hope to leave for Bangkok, Siam, tomorrow.

ONE WAY TO PUT THE FLAG ON THE SEAS.

Revised efforts to find a merchant marine policy are being made from Washington for the near future. Prosperity for our shipbuilding industries, American goods in American bottoms, naval auxiliaries are a few of the points at issue. They are all good ones. Without doubt something should be done.

What should be done has been hitherto a question left for coastal interests and eastern enthusiasts to answer. And a policy of marine regeneration based for the most part on New York ideas and interests has not been a driving success. That the St. Lawrence seaway project to make Chicago an ocean port would affect this situation more favorably than any other single factor probably has not occurred to many American marine enthusiasts. A canal project localized to the great continental interior has not impressed the east as critically important in the entire problem of America's mercantile marine. It is time that the east learned better. A merchant marine policy for the whole country based on the interests of the whole country will succeed.

Two features of the St. Lawrence seaway plan will make for an American marine built in American yards. First a specialized type of ship will be built for lake, river, and ocean navigation. Ships up to 10,000 tons adapted to special or to general cargoes, as the case may be, and designed to fit the unique conditions of a combined fresh water and ocean voyage, will be built. They will run from lake ports to American coastwise ports, and what New York will lose through her back door, the Erie canal, New York, and other eastern ports will gain through their front doors in greater measure.

They will enter trans-Atlantic trade. Costs per mile for lake shipping and ocean shipping today are about the same. The low terminal costs on the lakes are balanced by the long haul on the ocean. The St. Lawrence seaway will combine low terminal costs with long hauls. It will be cheaper. Specialized carriers, both for lake and coastwise shipping, and for lake and trans-Atlantic shipping, will be built.

That means shipbuilding for American yards. Though ocean tramps will come in great numbers to lake ports, and shipping board ships now idle will be used, there will still be an increasing demand for new construction. The size, the high speed, the inflexibility in steering, the ill adaptation to specialized cargoes, such as grain and coal, make many ocean ships unsuitable for lake service. The new type will displace some of this ocean shipping, but the displacement will be largely foreign. American shipbuilding will gain immeasurably.

Second: Ships from Chicago will be American ships. The provision that prevents foreign lines from operating between American ports will virtually eliminate foreign flags from a Chicago trans-Atlantic service. The ships will be American ships of specialized types. They will be American built. They will be under American operation.

Fresh water shipping in ore and grain has been carried on in highly specialized types of ships. We have been successful in their operation. Chicago-Liverpool service would have the same kind of success.

Prosperity for our shipbuilding industry, American goods in American bottoms, naval auxiliaries are all good points. The St. Lawrence seaway will be the making of them all.

With the Republican national convention controlled by the east and with the Democratic convention controlled by the south, it would be wisdom on the part of the two great parties to recognize the west in their platforms. That recognition should be a plank in favor of the St. Lawrence seaway.

CLEANLINESS.

Commissioner of Public Works Sprague is trying by ordinance in the city council to reorganize the street cleaning department and get better methods of work and inspection and better equipment. The government which gets Chicago rid of street dirt and smoke will do a great thing for it. If we fail in handling these detractions we will only half succeed in the whole program of making the city a fair place in which to live.

We'll get the house built some day, and we want it clean. It will not be a cheerful place if it looks as if a mob had waded in, picketed, and decamped, leaving the rubbish. We're improving, but still have some distance to go.

HEIGHT RESTRICTIONS IN CITY BUILDING.

The idea that the height of buildings should be limited is perennial. We think it is inconsistent with progress and not likely to prevail in any vigorous, growing city. The skyscraper is the most efficient of buildings. With steel construction, modern heat, elevators, and telephones the modern district of high buildings has a comfort and convenience which no previous arrangement could give. The theory that the skyscraper was the child of necessity, that it was invented or perfected in order that New Yorkers might live on Manhattan island, is a fallacy. It was in truth a boon to New York, but it has approved itself in Chicago, which has a prairie to spread over, because it is the most convenient of building plans, as well as the most profitable.

Conspicuous is the crime laid at the skyscraper's door. Congestion is a nuisance. Concentration is an advantage, an essential to highest efficiency. Congestion—that is, overcrowding or excessive concentration—can be cured by subways and other improvements in transportation. But concentration in the modern high building is too convenient and economical of time and effort to be sacrificed. A city which by restriction imposed such a sacrifice would presently find itself outdistanced by rivals which recognized the value of efficient concentration.

FOR ADEQUATE ROADS.

Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the United States bureau of roads, and George A. Quinn, Cook county superintendent of highways, have signed an agreement for a complete survey of the roads and traffic. It will begin next month and extend into October. The plan is to determine the facts and conditions and then prepare for an adequate system of highways sufficient for modern motor transport and competent to meet its future.

This is the wisest traffic action which has been had in this community. The state government, it will be noted, does not participate. Nevertheless the Cook county survey is expected to have helpful effects on roads all over the state.

The situation which was being permitted to grow worse and would soon have grown impossible was apparent to every driver who attempted to use roads radiating out of cities and all drivers should be eager to cooperate with the county and federal officials in the survey, as they are requested to do. The roads in their present condition are an obstacle to the proper and needed development of motor transport and their congestion is a plague to the motorist who wants to drive in the country for recreation.

The officials who have made the agreement are thanked for their action. The roads will be wider and there will be more of them. That will help the growth and development of the entire state.

PULLING GOVERNMENT UP
BY THE ROOTS.

Paul Painleve has been elected president of the French chamber of deputies, and it is the plan of the French radicals to use this as a means of electing him to succeed President Millerand, whom they hope to force out of office. That plan is an attack on the stability of forms of government. The president in the French democracy, as the king in the British, is the medium by which changes of government may be accomplished in orderly procedure. If the British king went out with every cabinet that fell, Great Britain would lose the form by which it recognizes the will of the people or their representatives.

The French president serves the same purpose, and if within his term of office he also is subject to every turn of politics stability is gone. Radicalism wants instability until it is in. Then it is different. The soviet government is not so responsible to the will of the Russians as the Plantagenets were to the will of the English.

SAVE THE OLD NAMES.

It is proposed in the city council to name the Municipal pier for Woodrow Wilson and thus find a way of gracefully repealing the ordinance which changed the name of Western avenue to Woodrow Wilson road. Many residents of the street and business men in it do not want the name changed and have arguments against it.

It seems to us that changes in names ought to be considered conservatively. At times the city seems intent on getting rid of its past and pulling up all the roots which have had a chance to grow with time. The past is valuable in the consciousness of a city. Thoughtful people try to develop the historical background and preserve its evidences.

It would be better, in the way of names, if what used to be Evanston avenue were still that, or better still, if it were Green Bay road. Not so long ago there was a request that Clark street, named for the soldier who took this northwest territory for the United States, be named "Fifth avenue." Wells street was named for the captain who was slain with the soldiers of Fort Dearborn. Part of it was Fifth avenue. Happily it's now Wells. We have a habit of taking names which are distinctive elsewhere and applying them where the local background of this city itself should furnish the name.

Editorial of the Day

ABUSE OF SOCIAL WEALTH.

[Indianapolis News.]

Social wealth, as differentiated from a growth in value directly associated with the efforts of an individual or a concern, is of increasing importance in the distribution of fortunes. Particularly is it a pertinent question in the regulation of public utilities. What a committee of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, which has been in session at Burlington, Mass., has to say generally on the problem is of significance.

Wealth according to the holders through monopoly values or special privileges, or through large opportunities for countless savings, is not earned, and wealth created by society should be devoted to the development of all the people in ways to be determined by the people themselves.

Utilities, with few exceptions, are monopolies. In that fact there is nothing that is necessarily sinister. Natural conditions tend to make them fall into that classification. Duplication of electric railroad tracks in the same streets, or of water or gas mains, is both unnecessary and undesirable. One system and one outlay of capital are all that is required in all except a few instances. That conception is held by all eyes of government, and, in carrying it out, laws have been framed to safeguard the rights of those to whom utility privileges have been granted.

In return for such concessions it is of the utmost importance that the people be protected from any selfish grasping on the part of those holding the monopolies. They are assured of a market freed from competition, they are dealing in products for which there is a steady demand and one that grows as the community grows, and in other respects their investment is protected as no distinctly private investment, devoted to commodities of a less basic nature, possibly can be safeguarded. So the logic of the situation demands that they should be content with reasonable profits, assured indefinitely.

These factors argue strongly against acceptance in a major way of the estimated reproduction cost of such property as a basis for rate making. Equally they emphasize the original judicious investment as an element of influence in deciding what patrons shall pay. The all but complete reliance on the former and the ignoring of the latter is largely responsible for the public's service concerns.

OUTGROWING DISEASE.

PERHAPS the last paper written by Dr. Holt before his death last winter in China is a hope chest for parents with children, suffering from the effects of one disease or another. Its title was "Outgrowing Disease." Its theme was the ability of children to recover in time from the effects of disease.

The author drew on his long experience to prove his points. He wrote of several people whom he saw in childhood with bad after effects of disease and whom he found in after years to be strong and vigorous, with no traces left of the conditions observed in childhood. First he discusses the mumpshead of a young boy named "Wally." Wally's frightful mumpshead, these irregularities practically all disappear in a few months.

The early closure of the soft spots in the skull causes no deformity. Nor does the late closure of these spots. The chances are that pigeon breast and other chest deformity due to rickets will disappear before adult life, if the child be given a chance to develop normally. Of course, gymnastics, exercise and play to develop the great muscles of the neck and back promotes the straightening out of the chest deformity. The deformity of the chest due to pleurisy treated by operation in childhood disappears. What becomes of the legged and knockkneed babies? The legs, bowlegs and knockknees in children are generally outgrown.

After whooping cough practically every convalescent child is wheezy, has emphysema. In a few years this emphysema disappears.

Dr. Holt writes of a number of children with severe Bright's disease and dropsy who eventually got well and had sound kidneys.

He tells of a series of cases of severe heart disease in children in the hands of his friends as well as his own hands who developed into sturdy adults.

Eighteen years before he wrote he saw a boy of 6 years with tonsillitis and rheumatism, who developed a very severe heart disease. When he was 15, he had a second attack of the same trouble. He had good care all the time. At 14 he began to feel. At 15, ten years, he was able to play seventy-two holes of golf or eleven sets of tennis in a day and is a fine physical specimen.

A boy had severe heart disease at 8 years of age, but finally got over the acute disease. It took a year to get the care of a physical trainer and a masseur. In his young manhood he was a widely known crack baseball player. He went through the war and came back a major. He is now a lawyer with a large practice.

ACCOMMODATION FOR REFUGEES.

CHICAGO, June 1.—(To the Friend of the People.)—I recently bought a vacant lot. On the adjoining lot is a garage, the roof of which overhangs the property by about six inches. It has been there over ten years and I am told that, because it has occupied this space for such a length of time, that I can not remove it without a license to build a garage, and his overhanging roof will interfere. Can I compel him by legal means to remove, at his expense, this overhanging roof?

Yes, the limitation period is 30 years.

LIFE INSURANCE AUTHORITY.
CHICAGO, May 31.—(To the Legal Friend of the People.)—Please tell me who controls life insurance business in the state of Illinois. Some authority issues them a license. Are there any laws covering life insurance business? Is there any way to make them come to time without going to court? D. W. F.

Ally complained of has been given a thorough cleaning and housekeepers serve notices to provide proper residences for the accommodation of refugees as required by the city ordinance.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

60 YEARS AGO, TODAY

JUNE 7, 1864.

WASHINGTON.—News from Gen. Grant that on the night of June 4, he had attacked Hancock's line, the rebel army, and that he was everywhere repulsed. Hancock's line is now within forty yards of the rebel works.

WASHINGTON.—Gen. Sherman advises that he is now in full possession of a line to within six miles of Macon, Ga. McClellan, Gen. John P. Schofield are advancing to Ackworth, where Gen. Sherman now has his headquarters.

HALIFAX.—Ships from Liverpool bring the news that the Derby was won by Bluff Athol; Gen. Peel, second; Scottish Chief, third. There were thirty starters.

NEW YORK.—Gen. John C. Fremont has written a letter accepting the nomination for President by the Anti-Lincolns at Cleveland. He says: "If Lincoln should be re-nominated there will remain no alternative but to organize against him every element of conscientious opposition with a view to prevent the misfortune of his re-election." John C. Fremont has written accepting the nomination for Vice President.

CHICAGO.—Many families went without bread yesterday because of the bakers' strike. It came so suddenly the housewives had no time to prepare for it.

25 YEARS AGO TODAY

JUNE 7, 1899.

LONDON.—The Central News says the conference between President Paul Kruger and the representative of Great Britain on disputed matters in the Transvaal was fruitless. President Kruger is standing firm and the situation is regarded as serious.

CATYENNE.—Capt. Dreyfus, the prisoner on Devil's island, showed excessive joy at the news that he is to have a new trial. Although permitted to wear his army uniform back to France, he refuses to do it until the court declares him innocent.

WASHINGTON.—President McKinley said a call that he expects to

SYSTOLIC AND DIASTOLIC.

L. H. G. writes: 1. What should the normal blood pressure of a woman of 30 be? 2. Does the word "pressure" indicate heart action or does it have relation to the quality of the blood?

REPLY: 1. About 120 to 135. 2. The term "blood pressure" means the pressure under which the blood is as it flows through the large arteries. The term does not refer to the quality of the blood. It is divisible into diastolic pressure and pulse pressure.

The pulse pressure is a measure of the force of the heart beat. The diastolic pressure is the pressure on the blood between heart beats. The systolic pressure is the diastolic pressure plus the pulse pressure.

COVERS FOR CEMENT FLOORS.

M. E. D. writes: Will you please put in your column something about cement floors in shops and how to cover or treat them so they will not affect employees' feet. There is a shop that is fine in all ways—light, ventilation, pleasant neighborhood, etc.—but the floors have made the girls have different foot troubles and now my cousin has been out of work two weeks in bed because of muscular rheumatism caused by the cement floor.

The owner is thinking of doing something to the floor, and that is why I write to you. He does not know what to do. Won't you please tell him?

REPLY: Cement floors are approved by health authorities because they are easily cleaned, are nonabsorbent and are not insect proof. At the same time, they are recognized as being cold and hard on the feet.

How they are to be covered depends on the use of the space. Wooden slat covers are better for shops where rubber mats suit best. In still others, some form of linoleum is used. Rugs are best for certain uses.

TRY TURKISH BATHS, MASSAGE.

L. A. M. writes: Please what is your theory and experience concerning rheumatism? Are rheumatism and rheumatoid? Also, red meat? Or other foods?

I have no pain when sitting still or lying down. When I get up, however, I feel a stiff and sore, especially at the back of the neck, knees, ankles, elbows, etc.

REPLY: Some investigators found there were arthritic conditions which have been called rheumatism, many of which go by the name of rheumatoid. It is not one kind is not good for another.

What you have may be what is called neuralgia. There is no reason for thinking that eating either lemon or red meat will harm you. If you try Turkish baths, massage, and heat!

REPLY: Mr. Editor, how does that compare with your contention that alcoholics sold under government control will be free from poison?

Does alcoholic sale bring profit to the people? Let a newspaper answer: "People are leaving British Columbia because of the financial conditions here, which are materially weakened by our daily drain for liquor."

Does it reduce taxes? Last November, in the provincial parliament, J. W. Jones stated that high taxation was strangling the agricultural industry. An eight acre farm in 1921 paid $132 in taxes, and $132 in 1923. City taxes also have increased.

Archie Johnson, chairman of liquor control board, regarding the situation in the U. S.: "If you ever get those brewers and wineries going again and allow them to make alcoholic beverages of any strength, they will soon be in control of politics."

Will you publish these facts in your paper? No, of course you won't; you don't want your readers to know the truth in this matter.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hey to the Line, let the guys fall where they may.

I LOVE MARY JANE JONES OF IOWA.

I love Mary Jane Jones of Iowa, So wars and rumors of wars Shall not disturb me; Neither shall the nomination of Senator Brookhart.

System of the state; Nor yet the activities of the Klan, Which may drive all Negro servants away And the keepers of second-hand stores.

Where Mary and I hope to get furniture; And even disturb the quiet soul of Father Phelan, who has promised to marry us And give the few back to the bride—

I love Mary Jane Jones of Iowa, Therefore I fear no late springs And the failure of the McNary-Haugen bill; Nor my cousin who also loves Mary.

Nor any other university student Who has read the Decameron and prefers it To the New Testament; For Mary Jane Jones of Iowa loves me also.

And the failure of the communists to Win Bob La Follette to their cause; The debacle of the French at Michigan City And on the football fields of France;

The harkkiri of five Japs because of the Exclusion Act; The failure of Mr. Mellon's tax talk; And the dilemma of the Democrats over Al Smith's Sahara Substitute for Light fines and cheer.

Do not move me in the least, For I love Mary Jane Jones of Iowa.

Aborigine.

YES, Priscilla came up and brought Haunch, Faunch and Jowl, and said: "And I hope I never see the dreadful thing again." Then we gave her Shackleton and the burst into happy tears, and we were so moved we landed her our beloved Sea and Jungle. We think Priscilla will bring back Sea and Jungle after she reads it. We think she will. She looks like that kind of a girl. Still some of the loveliest, sweetest girls we know have loaned themselves books out of our library and gone away, and the months have passed, and the grim, silent years—but, ah, some, some day.

At Present Writing There Does Seem to Be a Difference. Sir: In the midst of all the excitement about the pacifists, Richard and Nathan, H. L. 12,000 Women

... rain or shine

PICTURE Boston's famous Horticultural Hall packed with an overflow audience on six successive afternoons. Stately society matrons. Busy housewives from the suburbs. Alert young brides. Gray-haired, motherly souls.

Twelve thousand earnest women! Purchasing agents for 12,000 buying homes! Each with a business-like note book and ready pen in hand.

Now imagine that every woman in this vast assemblage made her way to the auditorium, on two afternoons, through a cold, discouraging downpour of rain. That each of the twelve thousand gained admittance only by a coupon clipped from The Herald-Traveler and filled in with her name and address. Further, that the occasion was nothing more exciting than a three-hour lecture on domestic science.

A Growing Service to Advertisers

Such are the facts of the most remarkable demonstration ever witnessed in staid old Boston. A "thumb-nail" of the huge Electrical Cooking School recently conducted by The Herald-Traveler's Better Homes Bureau. High-lights on the growth of the most extraordinary service ever rendered by a newspaper to its readers and advertisers.

Only six months ago the Better Homes Bureau made its bow to the world of housekeeping women in Greater Boston. A friendly, helpful forum where the big and little problems of housekeeping could be talked over and solved. A place where food, appliances and housekeeping methods could be analyzed and discussed.

Situated on a sunny corner in the heart of Boston's shopping district, the Better Homes Bureau soon became a mecca for thousands of interested women all over New England. Sometimes the walls of the Test Kitchen had need to expand into the street, so many women came for help and suggestions. And ever there was the plea, "Why don't you extend this work to reach more women? Give us a series of lectures about foods and food preparation."

Reader Interest—Plus

The Herald-Traveler's answer to that request made newspaper history. Twelve thousand women, rain or shine, crowded into Horticultural Hall to hear a corps of domestic science experts explain modern cooking appliances and demonstrate the preparation of food—from soup to doughnuts.

As an evidence of reader interest, this outpouring of Herald-Traveler subscribers is without parallel in Boston newspaper annals. Some of the reasons for it will be found in two informative booklets that should be in the hands of every thoughtful advertiser.

We shall be glad to send you both, gratis. Simply ask for "The Road to Boston" and "Mistress Boston Goes to School." Instruct your secretary to send for them now—on your business stationery.

MURDERESS ROW LOSES CLASS AS BELVA'S FREED

But Four Obscure "Girl"
Killers in Jail.

"Not guilty" for Belva Gaertner, who was acquitted yesterday of the murder of Walter Law, brought joy to her playmates in the county jail, and made her spring a little higher in the hearts of the remaining women "killers."

Only Sabella Nitti mourned. Poor Sabella, who chopped her husband one day, assisted by a roomer, the state charges, after greeting to visitors used to be: "Me chok," which being interpreted reads: "I'm sentenced to hang"—and now she waits a new trial. Each acquittal brings pang of comparison to her.

"She have gun. She shoot. She go free. Me, no gun, no shoot; me here over a year."

Only Four Left.
Four of those left are colored: Minnie Nichols and Rose Epps. The other two, Sabella Nitti and Lena Foster, are middle aged and well, neither is cursed with the traces of the beauty of Diana. Then, too, Belva and Belva killed young men friends, and these ladies only "bumped off" their husbands.

So they can't hope for publicity, maybe not even acquittal. They'll be given the same chance with the "weapons of defense" that the other women have had: powder, rouge, lipstick, and mascara. Makeup is taboo in jail, only soap and water is permitted, until those testing days when they face the "twelve good men and true."

Then the Fashion Show.
Then begins the fashion show, for each woman is firmly convinced that clothes make the man look more sympathetically. Shops send dresses on approval, friends ring in frocks of their own, and anxious lawyers borrow from their wives for their clients. They study every effect, turn, and change—and who can say it's time wasted?

But these "girls" will lack the some of Belva, known even in some other circles as an expert in dress. "The place ain't the same without her," they mourn, for she was the best dancer, the best card player among them.

It's true she was a little—well, not industrious, and hired the other girls to wash out her clothes and iron them "on the wall." See let Sabella take care of her next little bunk—but that's over now and they wish her happiness on her European trip to "forget it all."

Third Time a Charm.
"Funny the way they take it," mused one girl. "Soon as Belva was off she up and left poor Al cold and left and now Belva rushes off to a wedding!"

Married him once, and that was annulled; married him again and got a divorce; third time the charm.

Mrs. Gaertner, who is resting up for a few days with her sister, Mrs. Charles Kurshar, at 4457 North Boulevard avenue, said yesterday that no definite date had been set for the wedding nor for their sailing—some time within the next month, "was all she said."

A Terrible Strain.
"A terrible strain," she declared, but she looks a hundred per cent better after her three months' "rest cure" in jail.

KILLA WOMAN; KIDS QUARREL.
During a quarrel over her alleged attention to other men, Hattie Rivers, 27, of 2146 Franklin avenue, was shot and killed last night by Clarence Johnson, 32 years old.

MRS. M'CORMICK
BOOMED FOR NEW
G. O. P. POSITION
Prospects favor selection of Mrs. McCormick as Illinois' woman member of the new Republican national committee, according to gossip in G. O. P. circles yesterday following announcement that Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen would seek the honor again.

The choice of committeewoman may be put up to the Illinois delegation in the same manner as that in which the committee was selected, to the idea of William M. Butler, Coolidge campaign manager, who is slated for the G. O. P. chairmanship.

In attributing her desire to relinquish the honor to ill health Mrs. McCormick as her successor in recognition of the years of service Mark Hamlin's daughter has devoted to Republican politics among the women of Illinois. In 1918, following the election of her husband to the United States senate, Mrs. McCormick was named chairman of the Republican women's campaign committee. She was also appointed to the national executive committee in 1920.

DETROIT, June 6.—Frank E. Doremus, mayor of Detroit, in a formal communication sent to the city council today, presented his resignation and asked that it be accepted immediately. He said his prolonged illness had made it impossible for him to continue in office.

Wishes He Could Play a
Tune While Typing.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.
I've a little idea.
Place a tiny little bell on each little lever on this typewriter. That will educate the shock on laying down the phones. I then could play a little tune of my own and think it was coming from one of the stations.

Heard the Lyon & Healy concert hall program at 3:45 p. m. Thought many vocalists could study with profit Walter Willingham's (violinist) style of playing.

"Operatic Medley" played by the La Salle orchestra, and "Chesnut No. 1," played by the Drake concert ensemble were the two most pleasing numbers to this listener on the early evening orchestra concert. "Golden Evening" would seem more appropriate than "Chesnuts."

Had been wondering what that WLS 745 p. m. "Lullaby time" stunt is. Found Ford Rush and Glenn Rowell making a novel duet-like dialogue out of letters received from children. Don't miss this children's show.

Stayed with WLS from 8:30 to 9, for the University of Chicago quartet was for the time being "The Best on the Air," as Jack Nelson's song has it.

At 9:55 p. m. a series of unusual tones coming from WEBB turned out to be the Kismet Temple Chanters of Brooklyn, N. Y.

At 10:10 found the A. P. orchestra at KYY playing Jack Nelson's "After the Storm." At the close the announcer said, "If something like this comes after the storm, then let's have bigger storms and more of them."

Well, this announcer should have immediately tuned in W-G-N, for at that instant Ralph Emerson opened up the sixteen hundred or more stops of a pipe organ and swept the continent with "After the Storm."

WIFE CONTESTS HUSBAND'S RIGHT TO KEEP "BABE"

Boston Bull Pup's
Voice Not Heard.

He was just a dog—though his pedigree was long—and for his custody a battle was fought in the divorce court yesterday by master and mistress, man and wife, as hard as ever was waged for the custody of a child.

This struggle for "Babe," a blue blooded Boston bull, was staged before Superior Judge John J. Sullivan, in between bitter, impassioned pleas of estranged mothers and fathers for custody of their children. Always one or the other was favored—the other saddened.

He Bought Her a Bow Wow.
"What's this case about?" Judge Sullivan asked, when Mrs. Mathilde Whalon and Robert E. Whalon, her estranged husband, appeared before him.

"He has my dog, and I want him," the wife replied.
"I bought him. I won't give him up," Whalon replied. The judge smiled, and addressing the wife, asked: "If I award the house to you, will you so you can rear him properly?"

"No, I will waive alimony," she said.
"Have you any children?"
"No. Nothing but the dog."

The wife, in support of her claim, held aloft the dog's certificate of pedigree, and Whalon admitted he had bought Babe to keep his wife company while he was away nights. When he left, the dog left with him, he said.

Divides Babe's Affections.
Finally the judge, thinking how he had solved difficult cases where children were involved, said he might permit Mrs. Whalon to visit Babe "from 2 to 4 on Sunday afternoons." Balliffs rapped gavel in vain to quell the laughing court fans. "The solution didn't satisfy Mrs. Whalon."

"We can't cut the dog in two," Judge Sullivan said. "I'll settle it this way: Mrs. Whalon will keep the pedigree and Whalon will keep the dog."

The wife, crying, was led from the courtroom by her attorney, Benjamin H. Vanderveld, Whalon, who is a chauffeur for Julius W. Lowenthal, 4534 Greenwood avenue, returned to his home, where "Babe," unaware of it all, waited.

SHERIDAN PLAZA HOTEL IN HANDS OF RECEIVER NOW

Raymond L. Redheffer, Chicago banker, yesterday was appointed by Judge Hugo M. Fried in Circuit court as receiver for the Sheridan Plaza hotel, at Sheridan road and Wilson avenue, which is owned by the Sheridan-Wilson hotel corporation.

The appointment was on petition of the Chicago Title and Trust company as trustee for a majority of bondholders of a $500,000 second mortgage issued Jan. 25, 1923.

Difficulties were occasioned by the high cost of building conditions during the war, it was declared by Attorney Maurice Berkson, who brought the suit. A reorganization of the company is contemplated, Mr. Berkson said.

What's the case about? Judge Sullivan asked, when Mrs. Mathilde Whalon and Robert E. Whalon, her estranged husband, appeared before him.

"He has my dog, and I want him," the wife replied.

BERT M. JEWELL, RAIL UNION HEAD, IS SUED BY WIFE

Bert M. Jewell, who as president of the railway employees' department of the American Federation of Labor, called 300,000 railway shopmen on strike two years ago, and for a time imperiled the nation's transportation, yesterday was sued for separate maintenance by his wife, Mrs. Annabelle Jewell.

The bill, filed in Superior court by Attorney Charles E. Erbelein, charges that Jewell deserted his wife a month ago, and has since refused to provide for her. A similar action was begun in January, 1922, but was dismissed when the Jewells became reconciled.

Mrs. Jewell, declaring her husband's income from the labor federation was $250 a month, asked suitable alimony. They were married on Nov. 25, 1913, and have no children.

What's the case about? Judge Sullivan asked, when Mrs. Mathilde Whalon and Robert E. Whalon, her estranged husband, appeared before him.

"He has my dog, and I want him," the wife replied.
"I bought him. I won't give him up," Whalon replied. The judge smiled, and addressing the wife, asked: "If I award the house to you, will you so you can rear him properly?"

TRIBUNE GIVES 4,000 VETERANS BONUS BLANKS

Don't Send Them In Yet,
Uncle Sam Asks.

More than 4,000 ex-service men passed through the Tribune's public service bureau, 11 South Dearborn street, yesterday and obtained official blanks upon which they will make application for the adjusted compensation recently legislated by congress.

The bureau was busy from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m., when the doors were closed. A large staff of clerks gave expeditious service to the veterans. The speed with which the blanks were distributed, the instructions issued and the fingerprints made was a great surprise to many of the ex-soldiers.

An important announcement from Washington was made by Miss Harriett Smith, who is the friend of the Soldier.

Don't Send Blanks Yet.
"I hope that none of the men who have received the blanks will mail them to Washington until the proper time arrives," said Miss Smith. "The adjusted compensation branches in the Capitol are not prepared to receive the blanks yet. They want the soldiers to fill out the blanks and hold them until a formal order for their dispatch has been received."

"This order is expected within four weeks. There are a great many things to be done in Washington before the branches are ready to function. There is a great deal of machinery to put into service, as can be readily understood."

May Get Blank by Mail.
"Ex-service men may come to the Tribune bureau and obtain blanks. They should fill them out and hold them in readiness to return into the mails. The Tribune will carry the notice when the order for mailing is issued by Washington."

Ex-service men are urged to use the mails in obtaining their blanks. Any man who desires an official application blank can obtain it either by calling at the bureau or by sending a request, accompanied by return, addressed and stamped No. 10 envelope to the Tribune. These requests will receive prompt attention.

Bonus Check Stolen.
A $300 bonus check, earned by three years of service in the army, was taken from the clothing of Harry Beyer, 2320 Diversy parkway, as he was enjoying a shower bath at Hamlin park last night. The serial number of the check is 229413.

Removes That Knock
Boyce-ite, if given sufficient time, will remove from any motor, regardless of size or design, carbon knocks. Knocks caused by loose bearings, improper timing, etc., are conditions remedied only by an expert repair man. Each gallon of Boyce-ite-treated gasoline removes a certain amount of carbon. Patience is necessary in some motors, but the final results are the same. Use sufficient Boyce-ite and give it a fair trial.

Boyce-ite* Saves Money
Total your present expense of grinding valves, scraping carbon, etc., and to this add the increased mileage obtained by the use of Boyce-ite—and you will find that Boyce-ite actually does save many times its cost, and that the slight expense of adding Boyce-ite to every gallon of gasoline you use is a real economy.

Prevents Carbon Forming
New cars may be driven, with Boyce-ite in the gasoline, without the necessity of ever removing the cylinder head. Many car agents are using Boyce-ite in their new demonstrating cars to avoid carbon knocks and to assure that powerful, velvety feel of the motor that Boyce-ite always confers.

Increases Power, Increases Mileage
Valves seat properly, producing better compression; power increases; spark plug points become clean; acceleration improves. Boyce-ite saves gasoline without any change of carburetor adjustment. This is Boyce-ite's greatest proof of being a super-fuel. Taxicab companies, truck owners, motor boat operators, car owners, etc., write us of obtaining one, two, three and as many as six miles per gallon greater mileage when Boyce-ite is used in their gasoline.

Boyce-ite

TREATED GASOLINE

Kills the Carbon Pest

THE motorist of today is being sold all kinds of so-called high powered fuels under fancy names.

Every oil company claims theirs is the best. But you know and I know, and every chemist knows that all these fuels form carbon. One look at your spark plugs proves that.

These fuels usually cost more money and not infrequently are nothing but ordinary gasolines—well advertised.

How long is the American motorist going to stand for this unwarranted tax?

Carbon is your motor's deadliest enemy. Absence of knock does not mean absence of carbon. Carbon exists in every motor.

Carbon clogs valves, fouls spark plugs, overheats the motor, wastes fuel and causes an unbelievable loss of power.

Carbon today is shortening the life of your motor by tens of thousands of miles. Nobody knows how long a carbonless motor would run.

I am not exaggerating. Every word I have said is true. Carbon is interfering with the advancement of an industry. Carbon is hampering the development of motor transportation. Carbon is costing the American public millions of dollars yearly.

Carbon must go.

At the top of this page you will see the familiar Boyce-ite can.

Whenever Boyce-ite is poured into any gasoline the destructive carbon does go. The spark plug test proves that. And, with the elimination of carbon comes increased mileage, smoother, more velvety operation, more power and a marked reduction in your gasoline and repair bills because you never have to grind valves, clean plugs or remove carbon.

This convenient Boyce-ite can, dust-proof, leak-proof, tamper-proof, easy to use, is your protection from the carbon pest. Poured into your favorite fuel Boyce-ite enables you to create for yourself, before your own eyes, the carbon-destroying super fuel—a fuel that I believe is the only fuel fit for your motor.

Now a word of warning—avoid foul smelling nostrums that injure metal surfaces; beware of poisonous, corrosive preparations. Boyce-ite cannot injure metals. The very fact that it is packed in a tin can proves that.

My name is not unknown in the automotive industry—it appears on over five million Moto-Meters. It has never been connected with a product that was not reliable in every respect. Boyce-ite is no exception.

Boyce-ite has been endorsed by leading car distributors: Ford, Chevrolet, Packard, Oldsmobile, Cadillac, Marmon, Stutz and others. Boyce-ite bears the unqualified approval of the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University which made the most rigid and exhaustive investigations.

Boyce-ite is backed by a guarantee unique in the automotive industry. Here it is:—

"Go to any garage, automobile or accessory store, or gas station in your city, buy two or more dollars' worth of concentrated Boyce-ite, use according to directions, and if you are not satisfied that what I have told you is an absolute fact, take your car to your regular garage, and if your trouble is due to carbon, I will pay for having the carbon burned out, if you will send me the bill."

Go to your filling station, take a chance on the gasoline from any colored pump, but remember that every fuel forms carbon until it has been treated with Boyce-ite.

Deportation of A
Yankees Urged.

The Japanese Situation.

Japanese ronin (political refugees) break up dance at Imperial hotel, insult American women, demand deportation of all Americans in Japan.

Tokio movie theaters showing American films forced by gangs to close. Premier Koyama's cabinet resigns. Baron Kato, who is expected to offer attitude toward U. S. exclusion, slated as next premier.

TOKYO, June 7.—[By the Associated Press.]—Ruffians broke up the day night dance at the Imperial hotel, which was attended by members of the foreign community with a demonstration of opposition to the exclusion clause of the new American immigration law.

Following when the dance was a height, a band of thirty ronin, who translated means "political refugees," took possession of the dance floor and made a number of bitter and profane anti-American speeches, which were punctuated by dances with swords drawn. Two American women faint.

The police made no move to halt demonstration, although according to reliable information they had kept the plan for it since 3 o'clock afternoon. It is learned from authoritative Japanese sources that the American embassy demonstration is only part of a large plan which has been planned with the intention of evicting all Americans from the country.

The vernacular papers had been filled of the demonstration in advance, and had published photographs advantageously placed to pictures of the scene. The demonstration brought the anti-American feeling closer to the Americans than it has come before.

American Women Insulted. Members of the foreign community gathered as usual for the Saturday night dance, a regular event in social life. So far as the foreigners were concerned, the demonstration without warning. The "ronin" went on the dance floor and making speeches.

About fifty foreign women present, most of them Americans, left the dance floor at once, not because of the menacing attitude of the "ronin" but because of the insulting character of their language. Foreigners remained and a good fight was averted only by intervention of Japanese guests, who persuaded the "ronin" to leave. After the intruders had spoken for the Japanese, they addressed the Americans present, saying "the demonstration had not intended as an affront to Americans but was intended to shame the presence of Americans in this time of national danger. The dance, however, was definitely over, for the ronin disappeared owing to the action of the intruders.

Demand Deportation of Yank. In addition to making speeches, "ronin" distributed handbills, bore the signature "Great Japanese Association," and read: "This is not a time for discussion but a time for action. Now is the time for the young men of the nation to rise."

"1. We demand deportation of all Americans."
"2. We demand boycott of all motion pictures."
"3. We demand boycott of all goods."
"4. We demand prohibition of entrance of Americans into Japan."
"5. We demand abolition of all treaties."
"6. We demand abolition of all dancing, which is ruining the country."

After the demonstration all Japanese left the hotel. U. S. Charge d'Affaires. Jefferson Caffery, chargé d'affaires of the American embassy and other members of the embassy were among the witnesses of the demonstration. The Imperial hotel is the center of the community so far as Americans and foreigners are concerned. They may be the reason for the demonstration there.

While the speeches of the ronin were couched in the most insulting language, the demonstration was not a riot. (Continued on page 4.)
